MANPOWER IN COUNTY HITS 24,210 TOTAL

Registration of Youths In 18 To 20½ Age Class Hikes Figure By 1,330.

14,746 ON DRAFT LISTS

9,464 Not Subject to Military Service Under Present Regulations.

Richland county's total manpower—from the ages of 18 to 65, stood at 24,210 today following the nation's fifth registration under the selective service act.

Of that total 1,330 are the youths in the 18-to-20½ year age bracket who registered Saturday afternoon and Tuesday. Approximately 20 per cent—or 266 are between 20 and 20½, and are subject to early call for military service.

The 18- and 19-year-olds are not subject to call, under existing regulations, but as each reaches his 20th birthday he will be added to the list of those available for service. There have been numerous reports in Washington recently that the age limit may be lowered soon.

Of the 24,210 who registered in Richland county in the five registrations, 8,400 are in the 45-to-65 year class and 1,064 in the 18- and 19-year-old group, making a total of 9,464 not liable to service under present regulations. This leaves 14,746 in the 20-to 45 year classification on the draft board lists.

This group of 14,746 may be considered on the "prospective service" list, except of course in case of deferment for dependency, occupation, physical reasons, or other grounds. (This figure includes those registrants who already have entered service—a substantial group The figure may not be published, however, due to censorship regulations.)

An interesting sidelight on the deferment situation was a letter received today by one of Richland county's three draft boards from a large manufacturing company now busy with war contracts. The letter stated:

"Because of the acute military situation, this company is withdrawing its requests for deferment in all cases except key men on the engineering staff and production line."

In the five registrations to date, Richland county totals have been as follows:

First registration (those from 21-to-35) 9,500; second — those who became 21 by July 1, 1941—480, third registration—the 20-21 and 35-45 groups—4,500; fourth

Excitement Grips Down Town During Store Bond Sales

Large crowds came downtown today to watch the excitement—and to buy war stamps and bonds, when the city's retail establishments staged a 15-minute "Whiteout for Victory."

In this 15-minute period starting at noon, the stores suspended sale of their regular merchandise and sold only the war stamps and bonds. Store officials and department heads provided curb service and sidewalk service in front of their stores.

There was considerable din during the 15 minutes, in line with the request by the Retail Merchants' Association committee sponsoring the affair for everyone to make as much noise as possible

The event ushered in "Retailers for Victory" month during which the stores have a quota of war bond and stamp sales of four per cent of their normal sales figure for the month.

Shifts Plans For July 4th Celebration

Committee Decides To Hold Victory Parade Later In Summer.

Any proceeds raised by Mansfield's traditional Independence Day celebration at the Fairgrounds Saturday will go toward the purchase of war savings bonds which will form the "nest egg" for a giant victory celebration after the war, the committee in charge of arrangements announced today.

Final plans for the Saturday afternoon and evening program were completeld last night by the Mansfield Public Parks association committee which is handling the arrangements. As usual, high point of the day will be the fireworks display at 9:45 p. m.

Final plans included cancellation of the proposed civilian defense parade, which had been planned for early afternoon preceding the fairgrounds program. The parade was called off when it was learned that most of the Mansfield industrial plants will operate Saturday, preventing many large civilian defense groups from participating.

G. E. Kalbfleisch, civilian defense chairman, announced that plans would be made shortly for a separate civilian defense celebration later in the summer.

As one of the features of the fairground program, Major J. T Lovett of the office of the chief of staff of Fort Hayes, will speak on the subject of civilian defense Time of his address has been set for 7 45 p m.

The flag raising opening the afternoon program will be at 3 p m The mayor and other city and county officials will speak briefly, and music will be provided by the Senior high school band and the Westinghouse local band.

One of the features of the afternoon will be a bicycle pa-

OPA FUNDS CUT

Spokesman Says 75 Million Allotment Hits Price Work.

WASHINGTON—(U P)—The Office of Price Administration started a new fiscal year today on a drastically reduced budget as a spokesman said house action in limiting OPA's appropriation to $75,000,000 jeopardizes the entire effort to hold living costs in line.

Reduction of the appropriation—if finally approved as passed by the house—will necessitate the dismissal of 5,500 employes now on the job or "on requisition," the spokesman said. He also said enforcement of price ceilings on general civilian goods, on rents in 367 communities and on retail services will have to be seriously curtailed.

The ceilings on retail services, effective last midnight, cover the prices that may be charged by laundries, dry cleaners, shoe repairers, automobile repairers and similar establishments.

SALES DECLINE

Automotive Receipts Account for 17th Consecutive Drop.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — For the 17th consecutive week, Ohio's sales tax revenue slid downward for the collection period ended July 20, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright, reported today.

For the week collections were $1,076,429, or $177,453 less than in the corresponding week of 1941. Automotive receipts again accounted for the decrease, dropping from $351,689 to $94,265.

BANDITS ESCAPE

Lock Bank Employes In Washroom and Escape With Loot.

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Two youthful unmasked bandits who held up the Reliable Savings and Loan company and escaped with several hundred dollars were sought throughout Ohio and northern Kentucky today.

The armed youths, between 22 and 27 years old, herded six employes and patrons into a washroom, scooped up the cash, and fled.

British Battle to Hold Back Nazis

British gunners work on, above, despite the fact that German artillery is getting the range, as indicated by the shell bursting in front of their position to attempt vainly to halt the advance of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's armored columns eastward across the Egyptian desert. The gun pictured was emplaced near Mersa Matruh, which now has been abandoned by the British.

STORM CAUSES HEAVY DAMAGE

Mansfield Youth at O. S. U. Stunned By Lightning; Lucas Area Hit.

A Mansfield youth was injured by lightning Tuesday afternoon in Columbus and southern Richland county suffered heavy property damage in severe storms which swept across central and northcentral Ohio

Howard Ray, 21, Mansfield engineering student at Ohio State university, and three fellow students received shock and lacerations when lightning struck a tree under which they had taken refuge on the Ohio State campus

Young Ray, who lives at 20 State street in Mansfield, was taken to University hospital for treatment. His injuries were not regarded as serious. The four youths were knocked down by the bolt and the emergency squad of the Columbus fire department administered first aid.

Electric power was cut off for a half hour and several trees were blown down in Lucas about 3 p. m. yesterday when a storm struck

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Cleveland's biggest blackout since the war started was scheduled for 10 o'clock tonight when all the city west of the Cuyahoga river, Lakewood, the extreme eastern area of Cleveland, and 15 suburbs douse all lights.

The first 10 minutes actually will be a dimout, while from 10:10 to 10:15 the entire area will be dark, except for war production plants which are not subject to regulations.

47 SENATORS GET X CARDS

Tafwt Among Legislators Entitled To Unlimited Gasoline.

WASHINGTON—(U P)—A check of "X" ration card holders in the capital showed today that 47 senators—33 Democrats, 13 Republicans and 1 Progressive — now hold these cards entitling them to unlimited gasoline. This is about one-half the membership of the senate.

There are now about 14,000 "X" card holders out of a total of 138,000 ration cards of all types issued in Washington. Originally 15,565 "X" cards were issued here but about 1,500 were turned in.

Senators holding "X" cards included Robert A. Taft, R., of Ohio, and Joseph Rosier, D., West Virginia.

UPHOLDS ORDER

Supreme Court Says Ohioan Must Die For Slaying.

COLUMBUS — (U P) — The state supreme court, refusing to hear the appeal of Buffert Ray Doney of Canton, today ordered the 48-year-old convicted slayer executed July 22 for the shooting of his daughter, which the state described as "one of the most deliberate and heinous murders" in Stark county's history.

Doney was accused of accosting Mrs. Whitmer on a downtown Canton street after a family argument and of forcing her at the point of a gun to accompany him to a secluded suburban spot where he calmly shot her to death.

He was scheduled to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary June 2 but the supreme court granted him a last-minute stay of execution pending action on a motion for an appeal.

Steel Worker Denies Second Degree Charge in Fatal Stabbing of Wife.

Arraigned before Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston this morning with six other defendants named in county grand jury indictments, John Johnson, 42, Mansfield colored steel worker, pleaded innocent to an indictment accusing him of fatally stabbing his estranged wife, Mary, 25.

Three of the seven defendants pleaded guilty and four pleaded innocent.

Johnson's plea was submitted by Attorney George W. Biddle who represented four of the seven defendants in court. Judge Huston said Johnson's trial would be set for the week of July 13 or as soon thereafter as possible. Johnson is charged with second degree murder.

Judge Huston heard guilty pleas of James Eugene Martin and James Smith, colored, both 18, former enrollees at the Mansfield

Shaping Post-War World U. S. Task, Bromfield Says

Post-war America "not only will have to feed the defeated and stricken peoples but fight to construct the new world along the right lines," Louis Bromfield said yesterday in a talk before the Federal Business association meeting in Cleveland.

The novelist predicted the United States and Soviet Russia would be the two great nations of the world after the war.

The United States will head a group of democratic nations, including some remnants of the British empire, and Russia will dominate in Asia in which China and India will reach increasing importance, he asserted.

"The United States and Russia are alike in many ways," said Bromfield. "Both are immense in size and possess vast resources, vast populations and great futures. "Their peoples are ingenious, alert and active and, what is better, they both think big. They have no need to be empires, like England and Holland, and dominate other people."

200 Planes Converge on City's Airport In 'Round Up' Sunday

Mansfield municipal airport will take on the appearance of a military flying base Sunday when some 200 members of the Civil Air Patrol gather here for an inter-squadron round-up.

Uniformed patrolmen from the 10-county area, which has its headquarters at the port, will fly in for an "early-bird" breakfast to be given at 7 a. m. by the Mansfield squadron.

The dawn patrol fliers will represent squadrons based at Marion, Wooster, Sandusky and Lorain, in what is expected to be the largest assemblage of planes ever to gather here.

Commander James R. Harrington, airport manager, said today Wing staff officers at Columbus have been invited to attend the gathering and inspect the organization.

In the event of inclement weather, the round-up will be held July 12.

Climaxing the meeting will be an inter-squadron bombing contest, to be followed by a message pick-up demonstration.

The "bombers" will be supplied with five-pound sacks of lime and sand and scores will be tallied by a staff of umpires under the direction of Carlton S. Fernyak, group executive officer.

The message pick-up arrangement has been constructed by Robert Hunt, Mansfield squardon operations officer.

Dr. C. H. Bell, group personnel and medical officer, heads a kitchen police force which will prepare breakfast which will be served at the roadside park on the airport.

In connection with the breakfast tour Samuel Christy, group training and operations officer, has ordered a gathering of planes, one from each squadron, at Nova, north of Mansfield.

The ships will meet over the village at 1 a. m. and proceed in formation to municipal airport.

LYTTLETON CITES FAULT OF CAMPAIGN

Makes Admission as Churchill Paves Way For Test of Government.

HOUSE GETS MOTION

Non-Confidence Charge Put on Floor, Support of Prime Minister Certain.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Frank admission that Britain's defeat in Libya was due to "tactical mistakes" was made in the house of commons today.

Oliver Lyttleton, British minister of production who recently returned from the United States, made this confession on behalf of the government and high command soon after Prime Minister Winston Churchill had paved the way for introduction of a motion censuring stewardship of the defense ministry

Churchill declined to request postponement of a debate on the reverses in Libya on the grounds it would be "more injurious to delay a decision than to go forward with it."

Although frank in admitting Britain's deficiencies in the Libyan campaign, Lyttleton held out a promise of improvement with disclosure that American dive-bombers—the greatest lack in virtually all operations thus far—already have reached "one theater of war" and are on their way to others.

In addition to the "tactical mistakes" which he conceded, without throwing direct blame upon any one particular person, Lyttleton said that Britain's so-called "Crusader" tanks had proved unsuited to desert warfare.

The superior armor, weight and range of the German tanks which have so brilliantly carried out the bidding of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel proved the undoing

DROPS COMMAND

Van Voorhis Turns Over Fifth Corps Area to Gen. Wallace.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — After 44 years of continuous military service, Maj. Gen. Daniel Van Voorhis today relinquished his command of the fifth corps area to Maj. Gen. Fred C. Wallace and prepared to retire to his Muskingum county farm near Nashport.

The general, on terminal leave at present, will reach the statutory retirement age of 64 next Oct. 24. Twice commander of the fifth corps area, he had been stationed at Fort Hayes since Oct. 1, 1941, when he was transferred to Columbus after serving nearly 20 months as commanding general of the Caribbean defense command.

Born in Zanesville, O., the general attended Ohio Wesleyan university and Washington and Jefferson college before entering the army as a private in 1898. He attained his present rank just 40 years later.

Axis Columns 65 Miles From Big Naval Base

Battle of Egypt Sweeps Toward Climax As British Hint Destruction of Suez Canal; Entire Russian Front Aflame With Battles.

BULLETIN

CAIRO—(AP)—General Sir Claude Auchinleck declared in an order of the day to his Eighth army today that "the battle is not over yet and will not be over until we have defeated the enemy and defeat him we will."

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—A German attempt to launch a new offensive near Gzhatsk, advance point 100 miles west of Moscow, has been frustrated by powerful Russian counter-attacks, the army newspaper Red Star reported today.

(By Associated Press)

German field headquarters asserted today that Axis troops were attacking El Alamein, only 65 miles west of Britain's great Mediterranean naval base at Alexandria, and as the eight-day-old battle of Egypt thus neared its climax, official London quarters hinted that the Suez canal might be destroyed.

The Nazi command described El Alamein as the last British fortification guarding Alexandria.

The British acknowledged Axis spearheads had raced beyond El Daba, 35 miles west of El Alamein, and indicated that the hour of a decisive battle was approaching.

Closely linked with the defense of Egypt, Britain's embattled Mediterranean island citadel of Malta was declared by the American navy today to have received strong reinforcements of planes through American help.

Malta, the most-bombed spot in the world, is strategically important as a base for attacks on Axis supply lines to North Africa and Egypt.

A navy communique said the 14,700-ton U. S. aircraft carrier Wasp made a series of trips through the dangerous waters of the Mediterranean to deliver the planes, which were quickly manned by British RAF pilots and inflicted "considerable losses" on the enemy.

"The expertly timed arrival of reinforcement planes on the Wasp was most fortunate for the heroic defenders of the British stronghold and the cause of the United Nations," the navy said.

The communique said merely that at least some British pilots manned the planes, leaving open

HELP: U. S. Carrier Takes More Planes to Aid Malta Defense

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—In a move to strike at the principal supply line for Axis forces in Egypt, the navy today announced that the U. S. aircraft carrier Wasp has landed plane reinforcements on the island of Malta and that they have already engaged the enemy and scored a victory.

It marked the first official announcement that an American navy unit has been participating in the Mediterranean area. However, U. S. army forces already have been active in that area and American bombing planes were recently credited with badly damaging two Italian battleships.

Malta, known as the "most bombed" spot on the face of the earth, is a constant menace to one of the vital lifelines supplying the Egyptian forces of General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

In disclosing that the navy has now joined in efforts to harrass the Axis supply lines through the straits that separate Sicily and Tripoli, the navy said that the Wasp made several trips through the Axis-infested Mediterranean to rush the reinforcements. A communique issued in Washington stated that the trips were accomplished "without damage either to the escort or the Wasp."

RAID: Allied Commandos Land On Salamaua In Daring Attack

(By United Press)

MELBOURNE—Allied commandos, opening offensive land operations in the Australian zone, have killed or wounded 60 Japanese troops and captured war equipment in a raid on the big enemy base at Salamaua, New Guinea, it was announced today.

They swept down from the rugged New Guinea mountains at dead of night, slashed their way through the defense screen, and attacked the Japanese with bayonets, hand grenades and bush knives.

At the cost of two wounded commandos, they not only inflicted casualties on the strong enemy garrison and captured war equipment but brought out information on the layout of the defenses in one of the most important Japanese bases in the southwest Pacific.

There was no announcement whether Australian or American troops, or both, made the raid, but it was known that American forces were in the general New Guinea area.

The raid, small though it was, served notice on Tokyo that the Australians, the Yanks and the Dutch were ready for such hit and run thrusts preparatory to the general land offensive which Gen. Douglas MacArthur has promised eventually.

The Japanese were taken by surprise. Apparently in confusion, not even knowing where the commandos had gone to after the raid, they sent planes out to bomb Mubo, 10 miles south of Salamaua, and Komiatum, two miles southwest.

The Japanese bombing these two little native villages was regarded here as evidence that the enemy was hugging its base closely and believed that either village, or both, might be an Allied secret base.

MacArthur also said that Allied planes carried out a minor attack on the Japanese airdrome at Lae, 20 miles north of Salamaua, with results which could not be observed, and started fires in a light raid on the airdrome and wharf area of Rabaul, New Britain island, in the Bismarcks to the northeast.

The commando raid, it was understood, was made Sunday night, 29 weeks after the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

the possibility that American pilots may also have joined in the defense of Malta.

Simultaneously, the whole Soviet front was reported aflame with gigantic battles. Adolf Hitler's field headquarters reported fresh gains in the bloody siege of Sevastopol, in the Crimea, and indicated that the German armies had launched a new offensive at various points on the central (Moscow) front.

Other Nazi attacks were developing around Kharkov, Kursk and Kolkhov.

In the Crimea, German military dispatches said Axis troops had occupied Balaklava, eight miles below Sevastopol, and seized Fort Malakov in Sevastopol's immediate defense ring.

Balaklava was the scene of the storied "Charge of the Light Brigade" in the Crimean war of 1853-56.

Soviet dispatches said Red army defenders of Sevastopol, under assault by approximately 225,000 Axis troops, beat off a series of heavy attacks yesterday, but it seemed clear that the Germans were slowly battering their way into the ruined fortress city.

On the Kursk front, 500 miles north of Sevastopol, Red army headquarters reported that Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's forces were inflicting "colossal losses" on the Germans and had already knocked out 350 Nazi tanks in the three-day-old offensive.

"In one sector alone during the day, we killed over 2,000 German officers and men," a Soviet communique said.

In the critical Egyptian battle theater, latest reports said the British had not yet committed their main forces to the supreme effort of halting the Axis invasion, but it was apparent that a decisive test must come soon.

At the same time, conjecture arose as to the fate of nine demilitarized French warships at Alexandria in the event the base should have to be abandoned. Still seaworthy, the French men o' war include the 22,189-ton battleship Lorraine, four cruisers, three destroyers and a submarine.

With the Axis sweep already having advanced 200 miles inside Egypt from the Libyan frontier, front-line dispatches said Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck was rushing fresh troops, new guns and supplies into the forward zone for a showdown battle.

British informants in Cairo said the "zero hour" for the critical struggle was near, and declared that thus far the British withdrawal was in keeping with General Auchinleck's plan to sacrifice ground in exchange for the time needed to reorganize the mauled imperial Eighth army.

Conquered many times in its history dating back thousands of years before Christ, Egypt was clearly in extreme jeopardy as Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's mechanized armies raced on toward the Nile.

Italian headquarters said German and Italian tank columns had passed El Daba, 100 miles west of Alexandria; British dispatches conceded this.

The Axis vanguards were described as probably small and some distance in front of General Rommel's main armies. Nevertheless, they had knifed halfway into the corridor between the Mediterranean coast and the Cattara depression which affords the British their narrowest line for the defense of Alexandria.

British headquarters reported tersely that "a number of enemy tanks were knocked out" in an armored battle yesterday, but said fighting on a large scale did not develop.

Cairo dispatches said the best natural position for a British stand now appeared to be in the region of El Alamein, 35 miles east of El Daba and only 65 miles from Alexandria.

SAYS TACTICAL ERROR BROUGHT LIBYAN DEFEAT

Lyttleton Makes Admission as Churchill Paves Way For Test of Government.

of Britain's mechanized forces, Lyttleton said.

Enumerating the "tactical mistakes" made in Libya, Lyttleton spoke of the forces commanded by Lieut. Gen. Neil Methuen Ritchie which pursued the enemy south of Benghazi.

There forces, he said, were: 1—Too light for attack; 2—Too extended for defense; 3—"Not necessarily strong" for reconnaissance.

Without saying so in as many words, he put over to the house that the unit clearly was unsuited for its task.

The cabinet minister stoutly defended Allied production, insisting that Britain and the United States are turning out "most powerful" tanks and anti-tank weapons. He praised the American-built General Grant tanks dispatched to Libya.

"General Auchinleck (Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, commander-in-chief in the Middle East) still has a substantial number of General Grants and more are arriving on the battlefield daily," Lyttleton said.

With regard to the American dive-bombers, Lyttleton said:

"They already have reached one theater of war.

"More are en route, and still more will be delivered by United States factories in the next few weeks.

"They will be handed over to the Royal Air Force for support of the army and navy."

Sir John Wardlaw-Milne, conservative, who severely criticized Churchill as defense minister while the prime minister was engaged in conferences with President Roosevelt in the United States, moved his motion of "non-confidence" after Churchill waived suggestions that the government request a postponement of the defate.

Churchill, greeted again by terrific cheering from the benches with which he received yesterday upon his first appearance following his latest conferences in America, took the floor to ask that the motion be moved.

Wardlaw-Milne took his cue and presented the motion, stating that "our one object is assisting in winning the war in the shortest possible time."

The motion criticizes Churchill in his conduct of the defense ministry but his office as prime minister is not at stake.

There is absolutely no likelihood that the motion will be approved at the conclusion of debate which will occupy commons for the next day or two. There has been no evidence that Wardlaw-Milne and the motion's original signers will gain any additional support. In addition, a series of amendments has virtually nullified the original censure.

Amendments submitted included one request for establishment of a unified command while another practically reverses the motion in that it expresses full approval of the prime minister's conduct of the war.

When Wardlaw-Milne spoke he charged that Churchill's statement before leaving for his visit to the United States that the British in Libya were on equal terms with the enemy was "untrue and inaccurate."

He condemned Churchill as defense minister and demanded immediate action be taken to relieve the "very dangerous position" of the British forces in the Middle East.

Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, founder of the famed commandos, seconded the motion.

He told the members of parliament that during the winter of 1940 he had offered to proceed to the Mediterranean and organize commando raids against Italian bases and to "knock out Italy from North Africa before Germany could go to her rescue."

But he said, Churchill's naval advisor turned thumbs down on the scheme.

Board 1, covering the section of Mansfield west of Main street, reported a registration of 480; Board 2, for the portion of the city east of Main street and the portion of Madison township outside of the city, listed 314; and Board 3, covering the 17 other townships of the city, had 536 registrants. Of the Board 3 group, 287 registered at the board headquarters in the courthouse and 249 at the Shelby city building.

Board officials predicted that the figure of 1,330 registrants for Saturday and yesterday would be raised to 1,400 by transfers—those who registered in other counties. It was believed transfers were heavier proportionately in this registration than in others, because many youths in the age classification are working in other cities, attending summer school sessions at various colleges, and taking vacation trips.

There will be no lottery to establish serial or order numbers for the 18-to-20½ year registrants. The classification of the 20-year-olds is not expected to begin until boards have classified men who signed up in earlier drafts. Those 18 and 19 will not be classified until they reach 20.

Registrants born Jan. 1, 1922, will receive the first serial number and others will be grouped in sequence according to birth dates, through June 30, 1924, draft officials asserted. Boards with two or more registrants born on the same day were instructed to list such youths alphabetically.

THAT MAT'S NO GOOD, HAROLD!

Rubber Officials Say Ickes' Salvage Useless.

AKRON—(AP)—Rubber mats of the type Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes salvaged from the White House cannot be turned into articles needed in the war effort, spokesmen for rubber companies told the Beacon Journal.

Floor mats and miniature tire ash trays are the lowest grade of reclaim scrap. The rubber, reclaimed several times previously, has lost its bounce, they asserted.

The industry termed hot water bottles, rubber gloves and surgical goods the most useable scrap.

KILLED BY TRACTOR

DAYTON—(AP)—Eldon G. Martin, 38, of Xenia R. D. 2, a civilian employe at the army's Patterson field here, was killed late yesterday when he fell from one tractor beneath the wheels of another.

rade, and three $5 prizes will be awarded to the best-decorated bikes in three classes—boys', girls', and adults'. The afternoon program will include the familiar list of pie-eating contests and other stunts, races, and contests for the kiddies.

A bird show, known as "Canary Circus," also will be presented at the afternoon program.

There is no charge for admission, and the proceeds come from rental of chairs and sale of sandwiches at the lunch concession which the Parks association women's group will operate. Any profit realized will be used for purchase of war bonds, which will be applied toward the financing of a victory celebration following the war, according to the committee in charge.

Although there has never been a fireworks injury at these celebrations, there will be a Red Cross first aid trailer on hand for any emergency, and Boy Scouts of the city will set up a first aid tent.

The evening program will start at 7 p. m., after a one-hour intermission. There will be a number of singing and dancing acts, and the committee will award prizes. The fireworks — which were arranged only after the committee had been assured that their use would not take vital materials or otherwise interfere with the war effort—will be at 9:45.

Ed Wyllie, chairman of the day's program, predicted the attendance this year would be higher than ever because of the reduced amount of holiday travel due to rationing. Last year it was estimated that 30,000 saw the fireworks—thousands in the fairgrounds and other huge crowds on hillsides and other vantage points in and near the city.

the village. Traffic on state route 39 in the village was blocked when trees were blown across the route. Highway crews removed them.

Hail damaged wheat and other crops in the southern part of the county, while wind flattened wheat in sections that escaped the hail. Heavy rain fell in Lucas and in most of the southern half of the county.

Rainfall in three heavy showers in Mansfield yesterday afternoon measured .93 of an inch, but no damage was reported from wind or lightning. The city escaped the heaviest part of the storm which left widespread damage south of here.

More scattered showers and cooler weather were forecast for this afternoon and tonight. The mercury stood at 75 at noon today, while yesterday's high was 87.

A cloudburst which poured three and a half inches of rain on the Lancaster area washed out the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad tracks north of Lancaster. Carl Becker, 43, of Columbia Park discovered the washout in time to flag down a passenger train and avert a wreck. The train was held up for 12 hours while its 19 passengers boarded a bus and proceeded to Columbus.

after a British aircraft, manned by RAF pilots, had been launched by the Wasp, Axis planes attacked the island.

"Completely surprised by the increased number of defending fighters the enemy suffered considerable losses," the communique continued.

As the planes took off from the Wasp they immediately engaged enemy planes over Malta before landing on the island.

"After landing and hasty refueling at the airdrome they were again in the air continuing to repel the enemy attack within 30 minutes after arrival," the communique added.

The navy added significantly that "the expertly timed arrival of reinforcement planes on the Wasp was most fortunate for the heroic defenders of the British stronghold and the cause of the United Nations."

Axis radio stations on numerous occasions have mentioned the presence of American naval units in the Mediterranean, but this is the first time that U. S. officials have admitted their presence.

It means that the United States navy now is virtually engaged in warfare in all parts of the world.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, JULY 1, 1942.

This may clear the point—necessary vacation travel is not regarded as "unnecessary."

National unity does not yet extend to the point of agreement on a solution of the rubber shortage.

Several states are providing stiffer penalties for tire thieves—and, of course, one of them is occasionally shot, much to his surprise.

Speeders Hasten Rationing

WHEN gasoline rationing comes to Ohio—as it probably will within the next few weeks—blame it on the motorists who are just now exercising their "personal liberty" by driving as far and as fast as they choose, without the slightest regard for the urgent war need to conserve both gasoline and rubber.

It has been asked by President Roosevelt that motorists voluntarily keep within a forty-mile speed limit, and this has been supplemented by a request to the same effect by Governor Bricker, as applied to Ohio drivers.

Yet, if you have tried the experiment of traveling at a consistently maintained 40 miles an hour on highways in the vicinity of Mansfield, or elsewhere in the state, you have probably noticed that your car has been passed by scores of cars traveling at from 50 to 70 miles an hour, just as if gasoline was unlimited and tires readily replaceable.

The arrest of 20 motorists in the Mansfield area Sunday gives an idea of the extent to which careless, reckless and speedy driving is still being practiced, as the ratio of arrests to number of violations is quite small.

While the number of cars on the highways is appreciably less, it is apparently the careful, competent, law-abiding drivers who are responsible for this decrease, as there has been no noticeable reduction in the volume of speedy, reckless and drunken driving common to Ohio highways.

Vigilance of state highway patrolmen in making arrests in cases of flagrant violations of traffic regulations is to be commended. It may be hoped that their activities over the coming holiday week-end will be effective in minimizing the anticipated heavy toll of "last fling" driving.

Army of 'Snoopers' Not Needed

CONGRESS was recently asked for a large appropriation to add some 100,000 new employes, mostly enforcement personnel, to the OPA payroll. These employes would constitute a sort of private police force and would spend their time and the taxpayers' money looking for violations of the price-freezing order.

The National Association of Retail Grocers, an organization which represents thousands of independent food merchants throughout the country, promptly protested. In a resolution submitted to congress it said: "It is implied in this proposal to turn loose an army of 'snoopers' on the retail merchants of the United States. These men and women proposed for OPA enforcement personnel can render more useful service in the prosecution of the war against the Axis powers, rather than as an army of harassment operating at public expense on the home front."

That protest is well taken. As OPA officials themselves have pointed out, the retail industry in all its branches has been overwhelmingly opposed to speculation and profiteering. No industry has given more complete co-operation to the government in the campaign against inflation. To inflict this industry with 100,000 "secret police," would amount to deliberately harassing an industry which has a superb record of operation in the public interest.

The vast majority of merchants, big and little, will conform completely to the price regulations. Competition alone will keep prices in line. Consumers and consumer organizations will be on the lookout for violations, and will report them to the authorities. The OPA, of course, will need an enforcement staff—but it doesn't need a secret police force.

The 100,000 people who would be employed for this work are needed in war industry and the military forces. The hundreds of millions of dollars it would cost to pay their salaries and expenses are needed for war production.

May Profit By Past Mistakes

A MAN should never be ashamed to own he has been in the wrong," said Pope a long time ago, "which is but saying in other words that he is wiser today than he was yesterday."

That is a wise bit of illumination on a subject that bothers many people. They think that in some way they lose face if they own up to a mistake or a misdoing. Realizing that confession of yesterday's failure is also the manisfestation of today's greater wisdom ought to make it easier to go on from there.

The British, by this time, ought to be rather wise in war. They have made many mistakes and suffered many defeats. They have learned—academically—by all these former errors and disasters. Can they now transmute their greater knowledge into successful action? That is the really pressing question of the day.

What the British seem to need now is fanatical fighting. They need to "go berserk" like the old Norse warriors of heathen times who fought with fanatical fury. Only so, perhaps, can they save themselves in this fiery test, with enough of their empire to keep them safe and strong hereafter.

Kochia Scoparia Headed This Way

LOOK OUT, EVERYBODY! Kochia scoparia is coming. This is not a Japanese bomber, but to some people it will seem just as bad. Its other name is tumbleweed, one of the ball-like plants that break loose from their roots, roll with the wind across farms and pile up against wire fences. The pollen it leaves will cause hay fever sufferers to sigh for the good old ragweed.

Kochia scoparia started in the west, and is heading east. The Chicago-St. Louis line has experienced it, and at last accounts it had come as far as Indianapolis.

Just what is to be done about it is not known. But any hay fever victim will tell you that the world already has enough troubles without a new weed to stir up the old ailment.

It now appears that those who were predicting the war would end before Christmas were basing their belief on the fact that November is the only "V" month.

THAT'S WHAT THOSE REINS ARE FOR

Co-ordination Proves Tough Job

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

CO-ORDINATION'S the hardest problem we have to deal with, for the perfection of our war effort. We need to co-ordinate internally, and co-ordination inclusive of all the United Nations is of vital importance. How to accomplish it most effectively was the essential theme of President Roosevelt's and Prime Minister Churchill's recent conference in Washington.

How co-ordinative that conference will prove to have been remains to be seen.

To co-ordinate with our allies, we first must co-ordinate with ourselves. Ah, there's the rub.

Each of our wartime bureaus co-ordinates furiously inside its own setup, but the trouble is that they co-ordinate competitively against one another. Each has a list of supplies that it says it simply must have. These lists overlap and, reckoning in totals, there isn't enough stuff to go around.

The disputes relate mainly to allowances of raw material, to be processed by the various industries upon which our multiplicity of federal agencies depend.

Not Equitable.

According to the Foreign Policy association we have a sufficiency of this raw stuff for collective requirements, if we'd fairly divide it up amongst 'em, but the association's thesis is that some industries get unduly liberal allocations, while others are overly skimped.

There's little worrying as to the wants of so-called "consumer industries"—producers of merchandise for the civilian demand. The wartime bunch get the preference every time.

Occasionally there's a reminder that civilians have to have a modicum left over, to enable 'em to keep our own and our allies' soldiers in the field. As capable a spokesman as Agriculture Secretary Claude R. Wickard suggests that maybe we shan't indefinitely, be able to eat at home, and fight overseas, with no regard whatever for our domestic civiliandom. He forecasts shortages in our local breakfast, luncheon and dinner hour menus, if world strife strings out indefinitely.

Let civilians' prospects be as they may.

It's entirely a different thing when the war department wants something, the navy department wants something else (but made out of the same raw material) and the aviation corps wants ditto, processed in its particular way.

That's a broad classification. It subdivides a whole lot.

Relative to allocation and co-ordination, Production Manager Donald M. Nelson says we're over the hump. It hardly seems as if we really were, considering that Winston Churchill, had to come clear to Washington from London, to beg for a better combination of 'em, from President Roosevelt. If we actually are over OUR hump, it scarcely seems as if John Bull was over his.

It's understandable why he isn't, too.

J. Bull is dependent on us for supplies. Russia and China are as much or more so.

Okay. We produce such supplies, but we've got to deliver 'em. How? By water. After awhile perhaps we can do it by air; there's talk of big aerial carrying craft, but they're not yet in service to transport big cargo planes and flyers by the thousands. Such scooters are predicted, but they're only concepts up to date.

Cargo Subs?

Is it possible that cargo submarines may turn the trick, relative to supplies?

Heretofore they've been tiny tubs, equal to nothing more than squirting a torpedo now and then, but entirely inadequate to delivering stuff by the ton. Well, according to Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, an intensive student of the question, a 7,500-ton submarine is a practicability.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, July 1, 1922.

Stores selling fireworks did a rushing business, in preparation for a noisy and dangerous Fourth.

Miss Martha M. Dew and John Rexford Small were married at United Presbyterian church by Rev. Frederick Elliott.

Mrs. Bruce Pheil underwent operation at Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn.

Lester Hunter, of Troop 9, Boy Scouts, was given award for building best bird house.

A. C. Forsyth resigned at Brown Merchandising company to take position with Forkison Supply company.

Miss Louise McHugh and Herbert L. Reese were married by Rev. F. W. Rohlfing.

Birthday party was given for Marguerite Davey at Westbrook Country club.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On July 1, 1863, General George G. Meade, who had succeeded Hooker in command of the Army of the Potomac, met Robert E. Lee's advance with an army of 80,000 men posted on the heights of the Round Top and Cemetery Ridge, south of the town of Gettysburg, Penn. For two days the fighting favored the troops of the Confederacy but on the third day the line of gray wavered and then collapsed. It was a serious blow to the Confederate cause.

Health And Diet

Some Advice To Heart Patients.

—By DR. CLENDENING

A PATIENT who suddenly, in the midst of apparent good health, finds that he is suffering with heart disease is brought face to face with an enormous number of questions about his daily life which have never obtruded themselves upon him before.

Unquestionably he must adapt himself and his life to changes in his habits and certain things are entirely shut off from him. However, most of the things he is warned against by his lay friends do not affect the progress of the disease at all.

For instance, very few people with heart disease have to give up work. A certain amount of work and exercise is good for most people with heart disease because it strengthens the heart muscles. This, of course, does not apply to people who have pain or distress in breathing on taking exercise.

Question of Flying.

Should a patient with heart disease fly? Today, with the great increase in air travel, many men with heart disease are asking if it would be safe for them to fly. In practically all cases in which a man can walk comfortably he can fly comfortably, especially in a plane that is going over fairly level country and seldom at an altitude over 6,000 feet. If a man's heart reserve is good enough for all practical purposes at sea level, he probably will be comfortable in a commercial plane.

Moderation in all things which have to do with habit should be the rule. Nothing, however, needs to be given up entirely. A man with heart disease should use tobacco moderately and perhaps smoke only after a meal, three times a day. There is no good reason to believe that coffee or tea do any great harm to the heart. Moderate indulgence in alcoholic beverages, if this has been that patient's habit, should be continued because they cause relaxation and dilatation of the blood vessels.

Mental work often puts more of a strain on the heart than physical work because nature does not have the same danger signals to flash when mental work is excessive.

Surgical operations need consideration but there is no hard and fast rule against a patient with heart disease having a surgical operation.

Timely Editorial

Post-War Plastics.

A New York dispatch via Wide World service quotes the president of the Society of the Plastics Industry as predicting a post-war "golden age" based on a vast expansion in use of plastics.

This seems at least not improbable. The burst of prosperity after the last war often has been attributed to the expansion of the auto industry, which, with the exception of Henry Ford and his Model T, had not theretofore swung fully into mass production. When the industry as a whole was stimulated by the war to go in for mass methods of manufacture, it brought even fine cars within the reach of mass demand, which eagerly absorbed all that could be produced.

The chief economic characteristic of plastics is their adaptability to mass production, which is why they are being developed intensively for a variety of war materials.

They can substitute for wood or metal in a large and ever-expanding number of articles and, wherever they are used, the effect of their cheap and rapid manufacture is to lower the cost of the article in question.—Detroit News.

One-Minute Test

1. What president of the United States, while holding that office, lived in New York City?

2. What route did Manuel Quezon, refugee president of the Philippines, take when he brought his family to the United States?

3. How did the Adam's apple get its name?

Hints on Etiquette

The correct procedure when you ask a cab driver to wait at an address to which he has driven you, is to pay him what is on the meter up to that point. He may be asked to move on, whether he is waiting for a fare or not.

Words of Wisdom

Would you touch a nettle without being stung by it; take hold of it stoutly. Do the same to other annoyances, and hardly anything will annoy you.—Hare.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. George Washington.

2. He left the Philippines via Corregidor and Australia, then to California and across the United States to Washington.

3. A piece of the forbidden fruit was supposed to have lodged in Adam's throat.

Seesawing Operations In Africa Hard for Americans to Analyze

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The hardest thing for the average layman to understand in the whole war situation is the seesawing campaign in North Africa. This is especially true since Gen. Rommel is now at the highest point the Axis has yet reached in this seesaw.

Americans read of U. S. bombers being interned in Turkey after successfully bombing the Rumanian oil fields. Then they look at the map and realize it would actually have been easier for those planes to have strafed Rommel's panzer divisions and the heavy artillery implacements around Tobruk than to have done what they did.

Incidentally the British public is more outspoken in criticism of the strategy of the United Nations than are the people—and newspapers—of the U. S. A curious feature of the situation is that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill agreed shortly after Pearl Harbor that the first objective should be the crushing of Hitler. The Australians did not like that. They wanted more force put into the southwest Pacific but the people of Britain, and, to a lesser degree, of the U. S., generally approved.

But an essential feature of the "Hitler first" campaign strategy was to break the morale of the German people. Naturally the success of Rommel in North Africa is not very helpful in that direction.

OBVIOUSLY the real reasons why more aid has not been sent to the British forces in North Africa cannot be stated. But it is possible to point out a few facts which might have a bearing on it.

One of them is this beating of the drums of about a "second front in Europe." For the last month Washington and London have been virtually urging news writers to talk about this second front. Always the words "in Europe" have been coupled with "second front."

When Churchill arrived in the U. S. on June 18, Presidential Secretary Early told reporters, in making the announcement, that speculation on a "second front in Europe" was "certainly justified."

Within two days London censors permitted the fact that U. S. troops were in England as well as Ireland to be stated. It had already been mentioned, with an elaborate air of inadvertence, by high army officers.

The strength of well trained and equipped troops now on the island of Britain has been "told in confidence" so widely that if Germany has not heard about it her espionage system needs overhauling.

NOW what does all this mean? Are we purposely signaling our punches? Strangely enough the answer is yes. We are following the same procedure Hitler used with respect to the Low Countries. He would mass troops, tanks and planes at one point, keep them there long enough to be sure the word had reached London and Paris as well as Brussels and Amsterdam. Then he would study the reports of his own spies as to what arrangements had been made for his reception! Then, he would repeat the whole performance at another point.

The enlarging Commando raids, always with the possibility of a real invasion of the continent following the discovery of a soft spot, are motivated by the same purpose.

It might have been that there would only have been talk of a second front this year had Hitler really prepared for it. But Hitler, throwing his strength into an all out attack on Russia and Egypt, has gambled that there has been too much signaling for it to be real.

He may be surprised.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — On most of the workroom walls in the Office of Censorship, there is this caution:

"A censor needs the eye of a hawk; the memory of an elephant; the nose of a bloodhound; the heart of a lion; the vigilance of an owl; the voice of a dove; the sagacity of Solomon; the patience of Job, and the imperturability of the Sphinx."

In spite of the fact that that describes a masterpiece of conglomerate genius, I think the author should have added: "A Jovian sense of humor."

Director of Censorship Byron Price has had to do a lot of grinning over the fact that some one wrote a song and dedicated it to him, entitled: "They May Censor All My Letters, Dear, But Read Between the Lines."

WITHOUT humor Solomon would have been hard put to figure out what to do in the case of the young lady from Florida who complained that she had received a letter, "Opened by Censor," which enclosed only an oblong memo, on which was written: "Dear young lady: Your soldier still loves you, but he talks too much."

The eye of the hawk was working all right (in this case ear) when the telephone censor twice broke a long distance call from southern California to Mexico because the Californian insisted on discussing the "arrival of the bombers." But it was a sense of humor that kept the censor's face from being very red when the irate native son bellowed: "What's the matter with you?" I'm talking about our pro football team, the San Diego Bombers."

Patience takes an awful beating too when the censor boys have to weed out all those letters diwho don't know census from censor," saying please send me my birth certificate. But the writers who don't kno wcensus from censor weren't as far off as the fellow who addressed his query to "The Office of Senator Ship."

THAT elephantine memory recalls that messages in World war I were transmitted by numerals and initials (that's why the overseas boys and their at-home girls can't use XXX's for kisses any more), but what are you to do about the soldier in the South Pacific who wrote: "Those initials on the back of the letter that the censor cut out were: P.P. R.L.H., which meant Postman Postman, Run Like Hell; and B.O.Y.L.T.O.P, which meant Better On Your Lips Than On Paper."

The old bloodhound's nose gets a-twitching at the wrong time every once in a while, also. For instance, all letters addressed to Axis officials and dignitaries are very suspect and come in for a bit of special investigation. Once in a while there's one like that addressed to "Admiral Yamamoto." The censor unfolded a large sheet to be greeted by the printed smarty: "Hello, Nosey."

All in all, though, I don't think the censors ever were quite so abashed as when they opened the letter from the private in Hawaii to his parents. "Dear Mom and Pop: (it said) I can't tell you anything about life in the army. That's because these letters are opened by censors and some of the censors may be spies."

Man About Manhattan

Author By Preference

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—There's a Scot novelist in town who has a step-son only 13 years younger than himself. His name is James Ronald. He adopted the boy out of a London slum. The kid is now in the army and was evacuated from Dunkirk. The kid is also married and has a son of his own, which makes Ronald a grand daddy at 37. He's very proud of the boy and dedicated his newest novel, "Old Soldiers Never Die," to him.

I first met James Ronald in the lobby of the Algonquin over a glass of claret. He weighs 210 pounds but doesn't look it. He wears shell-rim glasses and has an infectious grin. He's temporarily a semi-invalid, having been cracked up in a motor accident.

He could make a living playing bridge if he didn't prefer to write novels. He lives in Connecticut, which, he says, has the same kind of climate as Scotland. Ronald himself is a product of Glasgow, but he has worked on dirt roads out of Chicago, washed dishes in London, driven a hack, organized volunteer ambulance posts (out of reclaimed laundry vans) and written short stories and novels, some of which have been turned into American movies.

One of his novels, "They Can't Hang Me," turned up as a movie in this country under the title of "The Witness Vanishes," with Wendy Barry and Edmund Lowe. He still feels that "They Can't Hang Me" was a better title than "The Witness Vanishes."

WHEN I saw Ronald he was feeling pretty good. He had just passed Scribner's Fifth avenue, and their entire show-window had been given over to a display of "Old Soldiers Never Die." . . . "I was pop-eyed," he said. "It was corny of me, no doubt, but I stood out there and stared at the window like an actor seeing his name in lights for the first time."

Another thing that made Ronald feel good was the enthusiasm of C. Aubrey Smith for the role of the Old General in the book. Aubrey left for Hollywood with a copy of the book under his arm. He read it enroute to the coast and wired his agent to get it for him. "Old Soldiers Never Die" is the story of a General who has fought all over the globe but who finds himself too old to take an active part in the current war. He winds up by winning a civilian's medal for valor.

RONALD doesn't know how long he will remain in the country. He has a younger brother in the army, and a sister who drives trucks in the army transport service. After Scotland was bombed pretty heavily, during the first part of the war, James asked his mother if the noise wasn't pretty terrible at night, what with the crashing buildings and exploding shells. . . . "Yes," she replied, "but then, fortunately, I like to read in bed."

A Farmer's Diary

Old People Help

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IT IS WONDERFUL, is it not, how old people add seasoning to life for the rest of us? They give us laughter, inspiration, sometimes tears—perhaps without a word spoken.

On our trip to the state capital the other day, we stopped at the home of a kudzu grower—a man past 80, whose small kudzu plot has been rank and thick every summer for eight years. His white curly hair rimmed his bald pate when he took off his battered hat—and his boyish blue eyes snapped with enthusiasm as we talked of new things in farming.

WE SPENT a delightful hour with the earthworm farmer—a slender white haired modern grandmother, whose bonny pink cheeked grandson was a living advertisement for her theories of agriculture, nutrition and child training.

We stopped in the old home village to see our friends, mentioned once in this column as examples of wise "make-up"—that rare combination of carefulness and character that makes folks grow old beautifully. The door bell echoed through a closed house. We thought they were away. Then, very quietly, the door was opened by a stranger and we were ushered into a hushed and silent hall.

"Is something wrong?"

"You knew Mr. P— had had a heart attack, and a relapse?"

We had not known it.

"He is very low. We thought he wouldn't last through the night. She is with him—sit down a moment." Another caller—a minister—had just come in. The lady we had come to see came down the winding stairs and greeted him in our hearing.

"Your husband—?"

"We thought he was better. The change came suddenly. Cardiac sclerosis. They have used three tanks of oxygen and a dozen hypodermics. He's resting . . . it's just a matter of time . . . we can only wait . . . and pray."

She was calm. She bore herself regally, although the marks of grief and sleeplessness were on her face. We clasped her hand and went away—sad, but somehow benefitted.

RETURNING home by another route, we stopped at the old home farm, where my wife grew up . . . now in strangers' hands. We met a grandmother, 87, in clean gray calico, beside the ancient fireplace. We had never seen her before, but she knew why we had come, and how we felt. She seemed to belong in that room where the blackened crane swung its heavy hook in the chimney place.

"Come back any time," she invited with an animated face. "They won't let me do much around here, any more . . . but I can talk to you."

Musical Comedy.

Red Skelton and Bert Lahr furnish the comedy, Eleanor Powell the dancing, and Tommy Dorsey's orchestra the music, in "Ship Ahoy," the nautical musical comedy at the Ohio. The plot deals with the adventures of a dancer who falls victim to enemy saboteurs and gives Miss Powell opportunity to tap out five new dances among them a Morse code. Virginia O'Brien is in the cast. "India at War" is the current March of Time attraction.

Spy Plot.

Attempts of a highly organized Nazi spy ring to find out when and where a fleet of ships leaving this country for England will meet a protective convoy are depicted in "Dangerously They Live," the Madison attraction. Co-starring John Garfield and Nancy Coleman the picture shows how an innocent young couple become involved in the enemy's plans. Raymond Massey and Moroni Olsen are in the cast. The second picture, "Who Is Hope Schuyler?" has Mary Howard and Ricardo Cortez.

Chicago Satire.

"Roxie Hart," Ginger Rogers' picture opening Thursday at the Ritz, is a satire on Chicago of 15 years ago in the days when Cook county refused to sentence a murderess. George Montgomery and Lynn Overman play opposite the star as newspaper reporters sent to cover "Roxie's" story, while Adolphe Menjou plays the girl's shyster attorney. The Range Busters in "Thunder River Feud" is the second picture.

FLIER TELLS OF 'FIREWORKS' IN RAID ON WAKE

Says U. S. Planes Took Japs By Surprise, Blasted Island Airdrome.

(By International News Service)

HONOLULU — "It was the damdest display of fireworks imaginable. We flattened everything in sight."

Col. Arthur W. Meehan, former army football star, who led the bombing raid on Wake island, was still enthusiastic today as he recalled the experiences of the surprise attack Saturday night on the enemy-held island base 2,000 miles west of Pearl Harbor.

"We blasted the airdrome and everything on the surface," he declared. All our bombs hit the target area. They weren't expecting us. Most of their planes were destroyed on the ground and we shot down the few that were trying to get up to us.

"The Japs were bewildered. We were only three miles off the island when they sighted us. Their first blast of anti-aircraft fire shook hell out of us but did no damage."

It was the second bombing attack on Wake since it fell to the Japanese on December 23 after a heroic defense by the small American garrison. On February 24 carrier planes from a naval task force pounded the military installations on the small island and sank a number of small boats in the harbor.

The navy announcement of the raid gave no details as to the number of planes in the attacking force or their base of operations.

"You can just say we came from Shangri La," said Col. Meehan, who was football coach at West Point for eight years and is accustomed to handing out non-committal statements

The flight leader praised the skill of the navigators on the bombing mission. He said they not only hit the tiny island "squarely on the nose" but came in at the point best suited for a surprise attack.

Most of the flight was made in an overcast but about four miles from Wake the weather cleared and the outlines of the island were clear in the bright moonlight.

"It was beautiful moonlight and Wake was a romantic sight," said Col Meehan. "The first blast from their anti-aircraft took us by surprise, for we hadn't seen the guns fire. It shook hell out of us and they should have kept it up."

But for some reason the fire was not sustained. The bombers went in over the target at medium height and rained down their explosives.

All of the crew members were elated at the success of the mission and were eager for another crack at the enemy. A number of Col. Meehan's flight companions were members of his West Point class which graduated in 1928.

TWO ARRESTED

Driver, Truck Owner Accused In Traffic Charges.

Mansfield police late yesterday arrested a truck driver and the owner of his truck on traffic violation charges after the truck was allegedly found to have insufficient brakes.

Police took into custody Milton C. Johnson, Chicago truck-driver, and Nicholas Schunatz, 349 Third avenue, owner of Johnson's truck.

Johnson was charged with unsafe operation of a motor vehicle while Schunatz was charged with permitting the operation of a motor vehicle with insufficient brakes. Both are scheduled to be arraigned in municipal court this afternoon.

PAPER SHORTAGE

SACRAMENTO, Cal —(U P)—Pvt. Raymond Kindt of Mather field received a letter from Bethlehem, Pa., written on a roll of paper measuring nine feet There was a warning postscript: "Sometime I'll write you a long letter when the danger of a paper shortage is over."

It's a fact that many people lose everything because of cyclone and damage by wind. In a few minutes, a life's work can be torn away. Don't take chances. Insure today and be safe tomorrow.

RELY ON PHOTOPOLYGRAPH WHEN INTERVIEWING CRIME SUSPECTS

LEXINGTON, Ky.—If you don't tell the truth, the photopolygraph will get you.

That means simply that if you should have some differences of opinion with police or other law enforcing officers, they will begin taking a lot of picture charts of you to find out just where the loot is hidden.

In brief, the photopolygraph is a lie detector invented by Prof. M. M. White of the University of Kentucky. It was one of the first three in the United States. It still is numbered among the only nine or ten lie detectors in the country.

Dr. White, a pioneer in the lie detector field, frequently uses his apparatus to help Lexington city police and the Kentucky state constabulary solve baffling crimes.

The first thing they do with the obstinate suspect is to place him in a chair and have him extend one leg forward to rest it on a foot stool.

Around one wrist and one ankle they strap sensitive devices to record what they call physiological-emotional reactions. The other arm is placed atop a slanting board that is arranged to record the slightest muscular movement, while the finger tips of this same arm and hand rest in a socket attached to an upright bar.

A few innocent questions are asked to put the suspect at ease. Meanwhile a camera is turned on. Through it moves a ribbon of sensitized paper on which blood pressure, breathing, hand tremors and skin reactions are photographed.

The first innocent questions, of course, show only the subject's normal reactions.

It's a little different when the officers begin getting closer to the truth. The marks photographed on the sensitive paper begin to take on a decidedly different appearance and spacing. The officers conclude that the subject is disturbed and ill at ease. When the photographs show extreme disturbance, they are pretty sure they have the guilty party —or an accomplice at least.

While his findings are not yet admissable as evidence in court, they are helpful to officers, who must build up their cases before they are ever called upon to testify at trials.

CHAPTER XX

Another day and the crux of Kay's doldrums had passed, for the moment. She could smile again, breathe deeply, walk with a springy step. Last evening with the Ellises was fun. Mrs. Ellis, like her husband, was round-faced and jolly. There was no guile in her, no effort to be other than she was . . . a good natured housewife who had lost her figure, but who retained her sense of humor and her zest for living.

"You must come out to Jackson Hills and see us, Miss Kenyon," she said, panting over her spaghetti. "But first I must tell you there are no hills. Where we live is as flat as your hand. We haven't much of a house, but it's cozy and we love it. We have three Ellis sprouts, one, two and four years old. They're a handful. It's a full-time job being the mother of three healthy youngsters. When you feel lonesome, just tell Ed and come on out. I'm from a small town myself, northern New York state. I know how it feels to be alone in a big city."

"Thank you, Mrs. Ellis," Kay said, grateful for the honest warmth. "I'd love to come, and to see your three sprouts. You've both been so kind, you and Mr. Ellis. I was sort of frightened, I guess, by so many people, so much noise, such a hustle and bustle. I feel better already."

"Good. Have another plate of spaghetti." Then she said to Kay's protest, "Oh, but you must Spaghetti is like popcorn, filling, but not lasting."

Yes, Kay thought, the evening with the Ellises had released the tightly wound springs within her. She was ticking again. Not normally, perhaps, but ticking.

At 11 o'clock, Mr. Burge, head of the department, sent for her. She found him tapping a pencil on his desk, the line between his eyes a deep furrow.

"I was thinking, Miss Kenyon," he said, without looking up, "now we have your first two displays under way we'd better be getting on to the next. Any ideas?"

Kay said, panic in her, "I've been so busy getting material, arranging for the two under way, I haven't thought of the third."

Burge cleared his throat. It was an ominous clearing.

"In National," he said, "we think ahead. We're at least two ideas ahead of production at all times. In other words, while we're putting the finishing touches on one display we're head over heels in another and starting work on the third. At times we're as much as four ideas ahead. Think it over and submit an idea this afternoon. We'll want a good one for a follow-up. Once we've set a pace, we can't let down."

Kay went back to her desk. Candy. An idea She must find an idea. Now. Today. She must think, think. What was wrong with her brain? Frozen? Numb? Her head felt as empty as a teacup turned upside down.

At noon she left the red brick and plate glass building and walked aimlessly. She ought to eat, a bite at least. Brains did not function on an empty stomach. A sandwich shop. She would manage a sandwich, a glass of milk. She turned into the shop. A newsboy shouted at her:

"Poiper lady. Poiper . . . read all about it . . ."

Kay took a paper, dropped a nickle into his grimy palm. Maybe, if she scanned the paper . . .

She ordered milk and a lettuce and tomato sandwich on whole wheat bread. She made a hasty survey of the front page of the paper. Nothing there she could use. War, strikes, politics. These did not sell candy.

She leafed the next page and the next, her hungry eyes traveling up and down the columns. Society . . . THEATER! Theatrical news . . . stories, advertising, pictures. Why of course! It must be here! It must be . . .

Then amazingly, one advertisement stood out from the others. The letters winked at her, advanced and retreated, jiggled crazily. The next time they came close, she'd make them stand still. No! They did stand still and they were shining bright. "Louisiana Belles."

Louisiana Belles. The title suggested fields of cotton. Little colored pickers in bright bandanas. Spanish moss trailing from miniature trees. A tiny iron kettle over a make-believe fire in front of a cabin. A Mammy stirring. Stirring what? Cane sugar and pecans. PRALINES!

Pralines. The succulent sweet of the bayou country. Old New Orleans. Crunchy little cane sugar cakes chuck full of nuts. A sweet the whole country loved. A hit show the whole country was talking about. Touche!

Kay gulped the milk She tried eating the sandwich but she was too excited to swallow. She left the change for her sketchy lunch on the table and all but ran from the shop.

Burge was at his desk when Kay came into the office. He was a cracker and milk man. He lunched from a sliding board in his desk. Also he was dyspeptic. Old-timers in the office never disturbed him until at least an hour after he had finished his cracker soup.

Kay tossed her hat on her chair, went directly to Burge's desk She was flushed breathless

"What is it, Miss Kenyon?" Burge barked He pushed back a pile of papers before him. Kay felt he would like to push her back too.

"Mr. Burge, does this mean anything to you?" Kay spread the paper on the space cleared of papers. Her enthusiasm over-rode his displeasure.

"Miss Kenyon," Burge said icily," control yourself. I see a newspaper. What of it?"

"Here!" indicating the letters that had winked, that had danced for her.

"Name of a show. What has that to do with me?"

"Louisiana Belles," Kay made it sound like a song. "A Kiss For Cinderella," "The Chocolate Soldier," they were shows too. What is the candy that made New Orleans famous, I mean the famous candy of New Orleans. Pralines! A plantation set, cotton field, cabin in the cotton, iron kettle, black Mammy, and pralines spilling all over the place."

"Why—why . . ." Burge stared at the paper. It seemed to fascinate him. "Louisiana Belles! Not bad. Not bad at all. It might—do. Look, Miss Kenyon, get busy on it right away. Draw up a prospectus—jot down everything you think of for the picture, what we'd use to work it out. Louisiana Belles And it's been there for weeks. If it had been a snake it'd bitten me."

For Kay the afternoon did not drag along. It passed in leaps and bounds. At 5 o'clock she cleared her desk, closed it. The plan for the new display was well under way. She would return to it with a fresh mind in the morning.

When she stopped at the desk of her hotel for her key and mail the clerk, a middle-aged woman in grey uniform said, "A young man has been inquiring for you, Miss Kenyon. He was here a moment ago. He's been waiting some time. I don't see him now. He must have stepped out."

"A young man?" Kay's heart gave a joyous lurch. Gary? Oh, if only it were Gary! But surely he would have let her know he was coming She'd had a letter from him only yesterday. Nothing about coming to New York.

"Yes," the clerk said. "A darkish young man."

"Are you sure he was asking for me? I'm not expecting a caller There must be a mistake . . ."

The clerk said, measuring Kay with practiced eye. "There's no mistake He asked for Miss Kenyon. Miss Kay Kenyon. There he is now, coming into the lobby."

Kay followed the direction of the clerk's eyes. Was she seeing things Chimera? No this was real . . . this was Ronnie Farnsworth!

TYPHOID CASE

Mansfield Woman Ill, Milk Supply Suspected.

Mansfield's first case of typhoid fever in 1942 was reported yesterday by Dr. William B. Wild, city county health commissioner.

Dr. Wild said that a Mansfield woman had contracted the disease last week and that health authorities believe that "bootleg milk" may have been responsible. The commissioner said that the patient had been purchasing milk from an out-of-town farmer who had no license to sell milk in the city.

Dr. Wild said that improved sanitation and control measures have substantially cut the number of typhoid cases in the city. Six cases were reported in 1935, five in 1938, three in 1939 and 1940, and only one in 1941.

COURT FINES MILK DEALER

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner said today that Roy Mitchell, Mansfield R. D. 3, had been fined $50 and costs for selling milk within the city limits without a permit from the health department.

Mitchell pleaded guilty when arraigned before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, who suspended the fine with the provision that Mitchell stop selling milk in the city unless he obtains a permit.

Mitchell was arrested upon the complaint of Samuel H. Young, sanitary health officer.

DESCRIBES HOW SHE OUTWITTED NAZI CAPTORS

American, Among Exchange Ship's Passengers, Tells Experiences.

(By International News Service)

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—Stranded in Europe since outbreak of the war, 942 American nationals, many of whom experienced the privations of Axis concentration camps, had returned to the United States today.

There was general rejoicing, cheering and laughter on a crowded Jersey City pier when the Swedish diplomatic liner Drottningholm docked with the Americans in all stations of life after completing her second such trip from Lisbon, Portugal.

As the huge liner, her decks overflowing with citizens of North and South America, swung into her pier crowds on the dock set up a tremendous cheer. Army, navy and Federal Bureau of Investigation officials immediately took over and no passengers were allowed off the vessel for sometime.

Among the passengers were James F. B. Roosevelt, 18-year-old nephew of the President and Mrs Roosevelt, and Miss Ruth Mitchell, sister of the late Brig. Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, exponent of modern air warfare. Miss Mitchell, who has spent more than a year in Nazi concentration camps, was first off the ship.

Miss Mitchell told reporters she joined the Yugoslav guerrilla organization known as the "Comitadji" shortly before fall of that country to the invading hordes. She was taken prisoner in the spring of 1941.

Attired in a bathing suit when the Nazi officers came, Miss Mitchell told one of them: "Pardon me. I'd like to put on my trousers."

When the Nazi officer permitted her to change costume, she said she was able to destroy certain valuable papers concerning guerrilla activity.

After that Miss Mitchell was confined to various concentration camps. The latest, from which she was released in exchange for a German national, was at Liedenau, Wuerttenberg, Germany.

Miss Mitchell, who is married to Stanley Knowlles, a British army officer but prefers to be known by her maiden name was met by her daughter, Mrs. Albert K. Yohn of Norwalk, Conn.

Declaring that she was ill-treated in Nazi concentration camps, she said her only possessions were the dress she wore—a sheer summer frock—her hat and a sleeping bag. Her biggest thrill came when she outwitted German agents at her arrest.

"If I had been caught with the paper which I destroyed in my possession I would have been killed" she said simply.

Of her life in the concentration camps, she declared:

"Anything more filthy doesn't exist. I was treated like a criminal. The men were chained, but I wasn't.

Miss Mitchell said she was placed in the condemned cell for striking a male guard "who came into the room while I was bathing with a single cup of warm water."

Asserting that she lost 40 pounds, she added that camp officials told her "to us you are just the lowest of criminals."

Miss Mitchell explained that when she joined the guerrilla organization, she was given a phial of poison which was carried in the collar of her uniform.

"Because I was in a bathing suit when captured I was unable to use it to kill myself" she said adding that she still has the poison.

After her release, Miss Mitchell said she was given a few hours in Berlin but was unable to purchase anything. The stores there, she added, "Have good window displays but there is nothing to buy."

Miss Mitchell brought a gift for President Roosevelt—a basket made of string from packages delivered to inmates of the concentration camps by the British Red Cross.

"They saved our lives," she observed.

Asked about her future plans, she declared:

"All I want to be is useful."

Dr. Luis De Mora, a member of the Peruvian legation in Paris, told reporters the food there was better than in Vichy where he spent three months. He refused comment on the unoccupied French scene.

Another diplomat aboard who likewise refused comment was Dr. H. P. Briem, newly appointed Icelandic consul general in New York city. Dr. Briem, who has served his government in Madrid and Berlin, was accompanied by his wife and daughter, born five months ago in Lisbon.

U. S. diplomatic attaches and their wives included Mr. and Mrs. Karl Valiquetto of Cincinnati and Miss Mabel Custer, Pittsburgh.

Jesse E. Saugstaud of the state department, who made the trip, said the ship would be overhauled before the government decides whether she would make a third trip. He disclosed there are many Axis nationals in this country who could be exchanged.

"But Europe is pretty well cleared out of Americans," he added.

THE WAR TODAY

By DE WITT M'KENZIE
(Wide World War Analyst)

Nazi Field Marshal Rommel has thrust his armored columns closer to the heart of Egypt, and the Allied position continues extremely grave.

The main battle hasn't yet been joined, but it can't be far in the offing. When it comes much will depend on the British power of counter-attack.

If the war has seemed far away and unreal to some of us, this great crisis should bring it very close, for upon a sweeping success in the battle for Egypt Hitler might build a victory which would bridge the Atlantic and threaten the security of our very homes. We see a manifestation of the vital importance of the situation in the British house of commons where critics of the government today are demanding that Prime Minister Churchill give an accounting of his stewardship.

All of us know, of course, that the Nazi leader's chances of winning the war depend on his breaking through to fresh supplies this year. We know, too, that the only feasible sources are the Caucasus and the Middle East, with their rich oil deposits and other resources.

Moreover it's clear that Hitler's offensives in the Ukraine and in Egypt are correlated, and that if both of them are successful they will form a vast pair of pincers which will grip Britain's interests in the eastern Mediterranean. What may not be so apparent, however, is how a Nazi victory in Egypt alone might have ramifications which would give the rest of the Middle East to the Germans.

Should Alexandria fall, Britain might lose control of the eastern Mediterranean. It's true, as London points out, that Britian might retire with her warships to Port Said, Egypt, or to Faifa, Palestine. But those ports aren't properly equipped to mother a fleet. The naval force would be in the position of a cavalryman who has had his charger replaced by a burro.

Moreover, capture of Alexandria would render Port Said and Cairo vulnerable. If these two places fell into Hitler's hands, he would be master of Egypt and could pour troops and equipment into Egypt and smash directly at the Middle East through Palestine.

You can carry this unhappy hypothetical situation on until the Axis has overrun the Middle East and is striking at the Russian left flank up through the Caucasus, while driving against the Soviet line in the Ukraine. Meantime the Japs would swarm the Indian ocean and make juncture with Hitler. Indian nationalists would then have a chance to apply their theory of passive resistance to a Nipponese invasion.

One wouldn't think that any further dangers could be lurking in the bushes, but there is still another There is always the possibility that the fall of Alexandria and Cairo would precipitate an uprising of the Arab peoples in the many countries they inhabit in Africa and the Middle East.

The situation isn't helped by the fact that many of the Arabs who came to Britain's rescue in the last war claim she failed to keep the promises she made to them through Lawrence of Arabia.

I'm afraid this isn't a pleasant summary, but it's best that we look at our hazards squarely.

Fables from the Fifties: It has been repeatedly written in headlines and etched in heartache that love and a career are inclined to clash. Cupid has good reason to be superstitious about walking under the ladder of success, and those who are torn between ambition and emotion almost always find that you can't have your wedding cake and eat it, too. But there are occasional humbler versions of the kings who gave up his throne for love, and this is one of them.

You've heard the one about the band leader and the girl vocalist, haven't you? She sings with his band, he builds her up, they fall in love; they marry, the vocalist becomes a star; they're separated by circumstanes, and suddenly they discover that the road to stardom and the road to Reno are one and the same.

Gracie Barrie has heard that one. It happened to Dorothy Lamour and Herbie Kay. It happened in a little different way to Roger Pryor and Ann Sothern. Gracie might have had the same problem. But Gracie figured it all out before she had to.

Gracie has been potential star fodder since she played, in her tenderest teens, in "Strike Me Pink. Everyone always knew that with the right part in the right show she'd be a Broadway smash. So last season her agent was dumfounded when Gracie was offered the lead opposite Eddie Cantor in "Banjo Eyes," and turned it down cold. The salary was fine, she admitted. It would have been a real experience playing opposite Eddie Cantor, she confessed wistfully. But she said no.

Because Gracie Barrie in the fourth year of her marriage to Maestro Dick Stabile, had that old problem. She and Dick were seeing less and less of each other. They still cared as much as ever, but Dick's band was always jumping from one city to another, and Gracie was either in a Broadway show or headlining in a theater out of town—but it never seemed to be the same town for them both at the same time. Whenever a career marriage landed in the divorce courts, Gracie would read about it and worry.

But not any more, because she's found the solution. She's singing in a band herself now — Dick Stabile's band at Jack Dempsey's restaurant. And every night when her work is through, she doesn't have to rush to a hotel room and wait for a long distance call from her husband. She knows he'll be right by her side, and they'll go home to their little apartment in Forest Hills together, and there'll be no separations ever, not even for a day.

'LITTLE STEEL' OPENS FIGHT ON WAGE INCREASE

4 Companies Get Hour Apiece To Present Arguments to War Labor Board.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Representatives of the four "Little Steel" companies today open their fight against a $150,000,000 per year wage increase for 600,000 steel workers that would affect the economy of every steel town in the nation.

The companies — Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Republic and Inland—and the CIO's United Steel Workers will begin their battle at public hearings conducted by the war labor board. Each company will be allowed one hour to present its case while the USW, which is requesting a $1-a-day wage increase, will be given four hours to stage basis for its demands.

Approximately 300,000 employes of the U. S. Steel corporation, although not involved in the disputes, will be vitally affected by the board's ruling in the "Little Steel" controversies. If WLB orders a wage increase, U. S. Steel would be forced to grant an equal pay hike.

After studying the report of a fact-finding panel and testimony at the hearings, the board will make its far-reaching decision. Officials believe that the board will take final action in the disputes within a week.

Although the panel report indicated strong support for a wage increase, officials predicted that a determined fight by industry representatives could easily influence the board's decision. Spokesmen said that the panel report based its "facts" on such controversial issues that the steel companies have grounds for disputing any panel suggestion.

It was pointed out that a wage increase, pouring $150,000,000 a year into the hands of steel workers, would make every steel community in the country a small-sized "boom-town."

STUDY WATER, SOIL PROGRAMS

Chamber of Commerce Groups From Six Counties Attend Session Here Tuesday.

Launching a soil and water conservation program in northcentral Ohio, agriculture and conservation committees of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in six counties in this area will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Mansfield-Leland hotel to map the project.

The session was called by Robert C. Remy, president of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce. District Chamber of Commerce councillors and conservation leaders from Richland, Ashland, Huron, Medina, Erie, and Lorain counties have been asked to attend.

Speakers will include Brooks Burnside, agricultural agent of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, and George J. O'Brien, state director of the district councils for the chamber.

The conference will be one of a series being conducted throughout the state to introduce a five-point agriculture and conservation program. The program includes land use planning, conservation, vocational agriculture and demonstration projects, farm financing, and post-war farm problems.

Chamber of Commerce officials pointed out that the conservation project will work hand-in-hand with the government "food for freedom" campaign and help to produce more agricultural raw materials for the industrial production of munitions.

U. S. ISSUES NEW LIST OF JOBS

A new call for custodial officers, junior grade, was issued today by the United States Civil Service Commission along with announcement that requirements for Junior public health nurse had been modified.

SMILING HOUSEWIVES 'SELL' PRICE CEILINGS TO RETAILERS

(By Associated Press)

NYACK, N. Y.—Rally round for the story of one of the strangest shopping sprees on record, or, how a woman's smile can sway the butcher, the baker, the dressmaker.

It's a tale of how the office of price administration hit the jackpot by calling upon housewives to acquaint storekeepers with the new price ceiling regulations.

"Just tell your butcher (or baker or dressmaker) about the 'frozen' prices," read the OPA instructions, "and while doing it, smile."

And so a little band of 35 housewives from estates hereabouts left their marketing bags and money at home yesterday and set out to "buy" with smiles the cooperation of their tradespeople.

Their excursion was a preview of similar campaigns the OPA is asking 50,000,000 other American women to conduct in their communities.

It was immediately successful in 237 out of a total of 240 cases.

Statistics garnered at the end of the day showed that there were 237 exchanges of smiles (meaning that many shopkeepers had pledged adherence to the OPA price schedules), two misunderstandings and one hesitation.

The misunderstandings, later ironed out, came from a Chinese laundryman and an Italian grocer, burdened with language difficulties, while the hesitation was on the part of a taxi driver who, a volunteer OPA worker said, "Backed away at first but melted when I smiled."

Why the OPA chose this small Hudson valley town as the "guinea pig" for its experiment was not disclosed, but some inkling of the reason for its choice may be gained from the fact that such well-known persons as Helen Hayes, the actress, Mrs. Maxwell Anderson, wife of the playwright; Gloria Iallen, the swimming champion, and others, live in this section—and most likely pay their bills and are on good terms with the tradesmen.

They tested their smiles and found that they worked, the OPA challenges every other American woman to go "shopping" July 8—"Price Posting day" and beat Nyack's performance.

GUNS JAM

Robbers Escape, Nobody Gets Shot, Police Recover $21.

AKRON —(U.P.)— It might have been a bloody gun battle had not the guns jammed just at the moment of contact between police and bandits.

Three men robbed a tavern proprietor, of $78 and escaped in an automobile early today. Two special policemen took up the chase.

Catching up with the robbers about two miles west of the city limits, special policeman William Dixon aimed point blank at one man—but his gun jammed. The robber aimed back—and his gun jammed.

The three robbers escaped. Regular policemen arrived and failed to locate the holdup men but recovered $21 from their abandoned car.

SCOUT LEADERS MEET AT CAMP

Area's Executive Board to Hold Quality Session.

Approximately 20 Boy Scout leaders making up the executive board of the Johnny Appleseed area are expected to attend their quarterly meeting tomorrow at 7 p. m. at Camp Avery Hand, jr.

Following a ham and bean supper the scouting program for the coming six months will be discussed.

Scouters attending the meeting will represent the Mansfield, Shelby, Ashland, Galion, Crestline and Loudonville districts.

Up and Down THE STREET

Patsy Frank, 13-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Frank, former Mansfielders, has had her first big stage appearance in Hollywood after several years of studying ballet dancing, according to word received by friends here. She danced with the noted Ada Broadbent ballet at the Shrine auditorium, and on July 4 will make a solo appearance before the expected crowd of 80,000 persons at the Los Angeles coliseum. The family moved to Hollywood last September, and Patsy has bene studying ballet under several teachers since then, and next week will start training with Irina Najinski, sister of the famous dancer.

Because of the war there will be no daylight fireworks celebration at this year's Fourth of July celebration at the fairgrounds. Ed Wilhe, chairman of the committee arranging the affair, explained this is due to the fact that the principal feature of daylight fireworks is the aerial bomb—with figures floating to earth on tiny parachutes from the exploding bomb. And these tiny 'chutes and figures have been made principally, in the past, in Japan. Hence they're out.

Although he missed the biggest county grand jury session in recent years, Prosecutor Harold Lutz was back in Mansfield in time today to "sit in" on the arraignment of seven defendants indicted by the jury. Lutz, who obtained a leave-of-absence to go into the army, took no part in the hearings today except to volunteer some information in one of the cases. He sat in front of the court bench with Acting Prosecutor John C. O'Donnell. Lutz is at home on furlough and is due to return to Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., on July 13.

ABOLISH CCC, SLASH FUNDS FOR WPA, NYA

Legislators Trim Emergency Agencies as Fiscal Year Ends.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Nearly 500,000 people lost their jobs or their government aid today by the scraping or curtailment of three depression-born federal agencies that have cost more than $17,000,000,000.

Congress abolished the Civilian Conservation Corps yesterday by denying it funds for the fiscal year beginning today. The start of a new government business calendar also saw the Works Progress Administration cut to skeleton form and heavy reductions in the National Youth Administration program.

In the background of the transition there was a change of eras—from men hunting jobs to jobs hunting men.

The life of the CCC ended at midnight, and demobilization of some 60,000 enrollees and 15,000 civilian employes of the corps began this morning. The WPA, its appropriation whittled by two-thirds from last year, was trimming its rolls down from 700,000 to 400,000. The NYA, with funds also cut by two-thirds, commenced dropping 60,000 persons from its out-of-school training program, to reduce the number in this activity from 130,000 to 70,000.

The rising economic boom of defense and war production already has witnessed the eclipse of the Public Works Administration, which during the depression loaned and granted more than $6,000,000,000 to create jobs.

In its eight and a half years, the CCC spent nearly $3,000,000,000 putting 3,000,000 youths and war veterans through conservation, school and health programs.

The WPA and its predecessors, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration (FERA) and the Civil Work Administration (CWA) have expended since 1933 more than $14,000,000,000, employing at various times a total of 8,000,000 persons. In the next fiscal year the WPA must get along with $280,000,000 and an enrollment averaging 400,000, with a large number of its beneficiaries being persons temporarily unemployed during the conversion of industries to war production.

The NYA was born in 1935, with a principal purpose of aiding youths without sufficient means to obtain educational advantages.

6 Parachute to Safety as Plane Crashes In Ohio

URBANA — (AP) — Six crewmen parachuted to safety as a two-motored army bomber crashed and burned in a corn field three miles west of here last night.

The plane, enroute from Kansas City on a routine flight, was abandoned when it ran out of gasoline, a public relations department spokesman announced at the plane's Patterson Field base.

Members of the crew were Lieut. W. P. McCarthy, pilot; Lieut. W. S. Lake, co-pilot; Lieut. L. F. Turkey, Sergeant D. C. Sardam, and Privates C. E. Blandchard and Chester McKeon. Home addresses were not announced.

Harold Stickley, 40, who stood in his yard and watched the plane fall 1,000 feet away, said the medium bomber dived earthward and "sounded like a torpedo exploding" as it burst into flames.

One of the crew members came down in nearby Mad river but waded to the bank unhurt, the farmer reported.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE OF COMING NUPTIALS

Guests at Tea for Mrs. Mowry, Recent Bride, Learn That Miss Carolyn Wolf Will Wed Lieut. Gordon Jelliff.

AT A LOVELY TEA honoring Mrs. Tom Mowry, the former Martha King, announcement was made of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Carolyn Wolf to Lieut Gordon Jelliff. Miss Wolf was hostess for the tea Tuesday afternoon at her home, 597 Park avenue west. Snapshots of the couple, which were hidden in the napkins when refreshments were served, told the 35 guests of the coming nuptials. Words beneath the picture were "It's to be a fall wedding!" Tentative plans are for the ceremony to take place early in October.

The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Wolf. A graduate of Denison university at Granville, where she became affiliated with Kappa Alpha Theta sorority, Miss Wolf taught school in Ashland during the past year. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jelliff, 125 Carpenter road, the prospective bridegroom is a graduate of Ohio State university and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta fraternity. He is now a second lieutenant in the army, stationed at Camp Lee, Va., and will arrive Friday for a 10-day leave.

Attractive bouquets arranged by Mrs. Jelliff decorated the home. The lovely centerpiece for the table consisted of pink roses, blue delphinium, violas and lilies. At each side were two white candles in crystal holders. Mrs. Jelliff presided at the table when tea was served.

Announcement of June Wedding In Covington

Announcement is made today of the marriage of Miss Inez Snider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Snider, Bellville, and Maurice Gessling, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Gessling, Greer. Vows were exchanged at Covington, Ky., on June 20 with Rev. E. M. Rose officiating.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berry, sister and brother-in-law of the bride. For her wedding, Mrs. Gessling chose a powder blue marquisette with white accessories and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses and honeysuckle. Her attendant was attired in a beige sheer dress with white accessories and carried an arm bouquet of pink rosebuds.

The bride is a graduate of Butler high school and the Mansfield Business Training school, formerly being employed by the Hughes Supply company. Mrs. Gessling graduated from Danville high school and is with the F. W. Heaton and Son Grain Elevator at Greer, where they will reside.

GET-ACQUAINTED PARTY HELD AT GIBSON HOME

Executive Board of Children's Theater Entertains Mothers of Young Players; Program for Season Announced.

MOTHERS of the youthful players of the Children's theater learned how they might aid in making the summer season a success yesterday afternoon when guests at a get-acquainted party sponsored by the executive board at the home of Mrs. E. D. Gibson, 282 West Fourth street, vice president of the organization.

Mrs. Gibson, presiding chairman, greeted the guests and introduced the season's program which will open Friday night, July 3, with the production of "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," in South park pavilion. She said that this was the first year the organization had functioned without a patron list and purely on its own resources.

As the program the board presented Harold McCuen, director of the organization, in a dramatic interpretation of Robert Browning's first meeting with Elizabeth Barrett, which he presented throughout the east last winter. Miss Doris Alverson, a member of the group, played Debussey's "Golliwog Cake Walk."

Mrs. Irving W. Clark, president of the organization, presided at the punch bowl in the dining room where the guests were served from a table beautifully appointed with summer flowers and crystal candelabrae.

Mrs. Edward Dinn of Glendale, Calif., a guest at the Daniel Simon home, arranged the flowers. Mrs. Dinn is a professional flower arranger in her own home city.

Hostesses for the afternoon included Mrs. W. J. Bishop, Mrs. Estes Thompson and Miss Esther Smith. Other members of the board are: Mrs. Joy Herbert, Mrs. Louis Meisse, Mrs. Jack Berno, Mrs. O. I. Alverson, Mrs. Robert Beatty and Miss Hester Robinson.

TO MEET THURSDAY.

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Central Methodist church will have its regular meeting Thursday, beginning with luncheon at 12:15 p. m. Mrs. William Bauer will be hostess. The afternoon program will commence at 1 o'clock and will be in charge of Mrs. J. C. Stout. The business session will start at 2:30, with Mrs. E .C. Jenkins presiding. All young children accompanying their mothers will be taken care of.

Debonaire's Club Honors Members With Showers

A crystal shower was held last evening for Mrs. Wendell Bell, the former Mary Bishop before her marriage June 13, by the Debonaire's club at the home of Mrs. William W. Gross, 37 Chilton avenue.

Bridge was played with the Misses Doris Simmons and Helen Bowden winning the prizes. They in turn presented them to the honoree. Mrs. Harold Eyerly was also honored with a handkerchief shower. She will leave the last of July to join her husband, who is a lieutenant stationed at Camp Fofrest, Tenn.

Refreshments were served at a table decorated with blue and yellow appointments. The centerpiece was of white lilies and blue delphinium, with white tapers on either side. July 17 a picnic will be held with Mrs. Johnson, Crider road.

Ten Girls Finish First Aid Study

Ten girls in Girl Scout troop No. 9 have finished their Junior Red Cross first aid course and are ready to receive certificates. Mrs. Joy Herbert and Mrs. F. H. McDowell are advisors for the group.

The girls are: Barbara Bailey, Louise Black, Betty Brook, Wyona Conner, Patricia Herr, Patty Lybarger, Virginia McMichael, Anne Parsons, Joan Fenert, and Mary Kathryn Rust.

Healthful Diet Rules Important

By BETSY NEWMAN

Keep the rules of healthful diet firmly in mind when planning your daily menu. If the children do not like milk well enough to drink their quart a day straight, slip it to them the painless way—in ice cream or puddings.

Today's Menu.

Breakfast.

Ready-to-eat Cereal Milk
Bacon
Whole Wheat or Enriched Flour White Bread Toast
Jelly Coffee Milk

Luncheon or Supper.

Toasted Cheese Sandwiches
Green Peas
Cabbage Orange Salad
Baked Custard
Milk Tea

Dinner.

Roast Veal Roasted Potatoes
Spinach Mixed Vegetable Salad
Orange Nut Bread Butter
Orange Nog

Baked Custard.

4 to 6 eggs
1 qt. milk
6 tbsps. sugar, maple syrup or honey
1 tsp vanilla
Butter
Nutmeg
¼ tsp. salt

Heat milk, sugar and salt. Stir hot milk slowly into the lightly beaten eggs; add vanilla. Pour mixture into custard cups, add a bit of butter to each, and sprinkle lightly with nutmeg. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) on a rack in a pan of water until the custards are set. When the point of a thin knife comes out clean, the custard is done and should be removed at once from the hot water to keep it from cooking too much. Serve either hot or cold.

Orange Nut Bread.

1. c. chopped nuts
½ c. orange marmalade
2½ cps. sifted flour
1¼ tsps. salt
1 tbsp. baking powder
1 c. milk
2 eggs, beaten
2 tbsps. melted butter or other fat

Sift dry ingredients and add nuts. Add milk and eggs and stir just until moistened. Stir in orange marmalade and fat, and pour into well-greased bread pan. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) for about 1 hour, or until lightly browned. If you prefer, shredded orange rind cooked in a syrup may be used in place of the marmalade. Use the rind of 1 orange up to ¾ cup of thinly shredded rind. Cover rind with water and cook for 20 minutes, then drain. Make syrup of ½ cup sugar and ¼ cup water, cool, add rind and cook, with very little stirring, until about 2 tablespoons of syrup are left; cool before adding to bread mixture.

Orange Nog.

1 c. water
1 c. irradiated evaporated milk
1 tbsp. sugar
1 c. orange juice
2 tsps. grated orange rind
Chopped ice

Measure water, milk and sugar into shaker or fruit jar. Shake well with ice. Add orange juice and rind and shake vigorously. If orange juice is very sour, more sweetening may be needed. Serves 4, makes 1½ pints.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Mentally I echoed Mary's query as the door closed after her. I knew my father's wish to see her must be in connection with the mission he had given her to find out everything she could concerning the subversive activities of Stephen Redfield, her leading man in my play, whenever she and Olina accepted his frequent invitations for tea, or for dinner before an evening performance.

But why was it so urgent that he could not wait until the next day to see her? This question puzzled me. It is not like my father to be inconsiderate of the comfort of the women of his family, and I knew he listed Mary as one of us, though she was no blood kin of his.

I did not expect any answer to my mental query, and I never would have the temerity to put it into words. But I received an explanation after my father had summoned me back to the living room.

"I sent Mary over to her own apartment," he said. "She was patently anxious to go, and said there was nothing especial about which she wished to see you that wouldn't keep until tomorrow. She asked me to say goodnight to you."

He did not wish me to see Dicky's winsome niece until after he had talked to me. That I saw clearly, as I made a conventional reply to his explanation.

"I am glad she didn't wait for me," I said. "She is terribly tired."

"And so are you," he rejoined. "As soon as I have explained one or two things, I am going to send you to your bedroom to lie down while I wait here for Richard. I shall want to talk to him first anyway, and you may as well be resting as listening."

He was going to make sure that I had no chance to listen, I told myself grimly, but only said primly: "That is very thoughtful of you, Father."

Spencer Explains.

His lips quirked into his rare, amused grin.

"It would be refreshing to know what you are really thinking," he said unexpectedly, and knowing my cheeks were blazing, I was glad he did not pause for a reply.

"But I mustn't wait to find out," he went on. "I am in a hurry to pack you off to bed for a short nap at least. I rarely have seen you looking so utterly spent. But I have two things to explain to you. The first is about Mary.

"Something special concerning Stephen Redfield has come to my notice in the last hour," he went on slowly, "and there's something I want Mary to find out as soon as she possibly can—if she can—although I have great confidence in her ability, as a sleuth shall we say?

"I told her I should tell you something about it, but I asked her not to speak to you concerning it until I give her permission. So now I ask you not to refer to it when you are talking to her."

"I shall keep a discreet silence," I told him, with a touch of irony in my voice, which he either did not hear or purposely ignored.

"My second explanation is about the message I sent to Katharine," he said. "I did not mean to give you the impression that the letter I sent Katharine tonight with the guards was to be delivered tonight. It will reach her the first thing tomorrow morning. Although I am a martinet, I didn't want to arouse a sleeping household unnecessarily. And now, off you go for that nap. I will call you when Richard arrives.

But I was so keyed up at the prospect of Dicky's arrival that I could not sleep, due to fear of his safety engendered by the warning my father had telephoned to him to keep the guards.

Soon I heard the telephone, then Dicky's entrance followed by low tones of conversation, the words of which I could not distinguish. Next came the closing of the outer door, which I guessed spelt the departure of my father.

Then I rose and went swiftly to the bedroom door, reaching it just as it opened cautiously, and Dicky's voice, through the crack, said softly, "Are you awake, Madge?"

Sun's Rays Needed by Your Baby

By GARRY MYERS, Ph.D.

Gradually parents are learning the value of sunshine. Accordingly some are beginning to allow their babies to expose a goodly portion of their bodies to its rays. Even some aged women, who once hid behind big sunbonnets, now are basking in the sunlight.

Unfortunately the sunshine is not wholly free to all. Many thousand children in the crowded cities can get it only from the blistering sidewalks. Their parents may not have the money to transport them to the open places. Some day the public conscience will awaken to provide sunshine opportunities for all children.

This will take time and education. Relativey few parents who have ample funds, or who live with their children where the sunlight is easily available and free, let their children have it. Think of the children on the farm, for instance. The average rural child under six gets less sunlight on his body than the average city child.

The wise mother puts her infant in the sun, with only diaper or trunks. She adapts the child gradually, beginning with a few minutes' exposure at first, not when the heat is most intense, nor when the sun will shine directly into the child's eyes. She lets the toddler and runabout play all summer in sun suits, or in light shorts, so as to expose most of his body to the sun. There is no reason why adolescents—or adults for that matter—should not be dressed so they can get the sun on their legs, arms, and back.

It took some while for the average person to accept modern bathing suits. It will take longer to educate the public to sensible dress about the home, on the playground, on the street.

Q. Have you written any pamphlets on such matters as eating problems, sleeping habits, tantrums, quarreling, jealousy and the like?

A. Yes; I have a long list of such pamphlets. You may obtain this list by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it. You may also have a list of books on child rearing.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHAT'S THE HURRY

After your partner has committed the pair to reaching at least a game, by an original game-guarantee two bid, by a jump bid of one more than necessary to overcall your own opener, by a bid of an opponent's suit or otherwise, there is no need to hurry. You can take your time then, giving as much information as you can, about your distribution and other assets, being sure that he won't drop the bidding. By taking it gradually, you can frequently give and receive more information, to help in reaching the best contract.

What a terrific error West made in jumping as he did at Table 1. East could not tell what in reason he should do, after that, except make the best possible guess. He did this when he chanced 6-Spades.

Maybe 6-Spades is the correct bid, for most players, as a bit of work must be done to make the grand slam, and also a bit of good fortune is needed. If South had the heart K instead of North, the contract of small slam could have been made, but not the grand slam.

Aside from West's boldness on his last turn, the bidding at Table 2 was much sounder, and West had pretty sound logic back of what he did. On his first response, he refrained from a positive response of 3-Spades, with no particular high cards to show, so that later support of spades would make it clear he had a splendid fit. His second bid, after the 3-Diamonds, was revealing. Then, when East bid the small slam lacking two trump honors, he decided to try the grand slam which, of course was made.

HOROSCOPE

FOR THURSDAY, JULY 2

Notwithstanding surprise, tenacious obstacles and personal animosities this should be a day of signal success, advancement, favors and expanding fortune and opportunity. It is a time for forging ahead above all opposition, limitation and perhaps personal physical depressions or inhibitions. In the most peculiar situations, stressful and disheartening there are those in high and low places who may be ready to lend the helping hand, to give impetus toward the goals of worthy and exalted ambitions and desires. Particular discretion is enjoined in all manner of intimate relationships and aspirations.

Those whose birthday it is may be called upon to cope with strange and stubborn obstacles and antipathies in both business and intimate relations in order to gain the predicted benefits of excellent good fortune, sound objectives and worthy ambitions, with increased popularity and prestige. These may be assisted by influential and appreciative personages threat. Particular discretion is in time of complication and enjoined in love and family associations.

A child born on this day should have splendid abilities of a nature to assure it place and power, wit, public recognition and good fortune. But despite its generous, friendly and ambitious character it will suffer in its domestic, family or love life.

Plan Picnic With Grill, Moonlight

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Let's have an old-fashioned picnic" was the clamorous vote of a number of service men—soldiers and sailors and marines — when they were questioned as to a little fun at one of last week's parties.

"They haven't begun to ration the moon yet," grinned a marine from Quantico; "I'm all for eats and moonlight."

"What a combination," murmured the romantic girl with the tip-tilted eyebrows."

"You've got to eat, whether it's raining or moonlight."

No one present being able to refute that argument, it was decided to have a picnic. Someone remembered a leaflet on old-fashioned picnics this column had put out last year, but the sort of picnic that leaflet suggested demanded wide-open spaces. With motors starving for gas, no one felt like tackling wide-open spaces on a card.

Thumbs down was the verdict on back yards. Young people who had just "found each other" were afraid they wouldn't find each other in the city's usual oblong between fences. The final vote was in favor of going by bus.

The ultimate destination was a picnic grove, formerly the property of a religious organization which used to hold its summer meetings there. Of course supper was to be cooked in the open. Jo Anne boasted a charcoal grill with a broiler rack. This, with a bag of charcoal, bought for twenty cents, could be depended upon to broil hot dogs, chops or bacon, as long as the charcoal held out.

Several ex-Boy Scouts bragged about making the perfect fire—one that would burn down to a glowing bed of coals. These experts decided their contribution would be a surprise. Everyone hoped, greedily, it might be steaks.

The girls voted for vacuum bottles of coffee rather than boiling it in the open. Baked beans, tomato juice, canned peaches and apricots for dessert, sandwiches and pastry completed the menu. There would, of course, be singing around the campfire which, after all, is the best argument for a picnic.

Service men who will soon be going overseas would long remember the girls, the campfire, the singing and the unrationed moon when there are less happy things to think about in the grim realities of war.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

This'll be a hodge-podge today for sure. A little of this and that and every thing.

And the first little thing is a review of the "latest" Mid-Atlantic league baseball averages as recorded by the Fremont News-Messenger, which shows Bob Kuzava leading the league in pitching with seven wins and one loss, fanning 44, and giving up 24 bases on balls.

Now it is well known to one and all by this time that Bob Kuzava has won 11 and lost one at the present writing, so the records can hardly be considered up to the minute.

* * *

But here the records are, such as they are:

Former Brave Chuck Byers had won five and lost one, and had 37 strikeouts and 39 walks.

Ex-Lima Panda Johnny Cindric was leading former Ohio State leaguers in hitting in the higher circuit with a mark of .282. Another old Panda, Weigel, had .273. Ex-Brave Bob Ankrum was next with .248, and ex-Fremonter George Sprys had .242.

Stan Platek with Erie was smiting .214, and Bill Campau of Tiffin, who was up there battling for the Ohio State league batting crown most of last season, was socking a prodigious .185.

* * *

I hope the boys are doing better,
Now their noses are a little wetter.

Al Schwaner, City News backfield star of last fall, still holds out hope of getting together a good semi-pro grid team this coming autumn—even though half his teammates are in the armed forces. and Coach Earl McMullen is now running the Globe Steel plant in Butler, Pa.

"I have some very good boys over in Crestline who could help us round out a team," says Al, who fires on the Pennsylvania out of Crestline.

"And I wouldn't be surprised if that Squirrel McMullen would be back about pigskinning time," he opined.

* * *

Al reports that his family hasn't heard from his brother, Vetch Schwaner, another old City News gridder, for three months. Vetch, a navy carpenter, has been aboard ship that long, but just where the Schwaners don't know. Although they think it's maybe someplace in the Atlantic.

"While we don't get any letters from him because of censorship, we've been assured by the navy department that Vetch is getting our letters," says Al, "and that's something."

Comes a postcard today from that old Yuncker Sports manager Joe Lesch at San Antonio, Tex., reporting that he may be in the next pilots' class organized there. Hah! Modern design! The column today turns out to be: "on the land, in the air, and on the sea to victory. Whoooit, whoooout, whooooece!"

* * *

"Here it is." says Johnny Villella, business manager of the Mansfield All-Star softballers, "a letter from the Toledo Old Dutch Beers, formerly the 1941 state champion Page Dairies.

"And it says: 'Okay for July 19 on a guarantee of $50.'

"We'll be playing those guys at Liberty park on that date," Villella promises.

$50,000 Gate for Game Predicted

CHICAGO—(INS)—Gate receipts in the neighborhood of $50 000 were predicted today for the twilight-night doubleheader baseball program to be staged for the benefit of Army and Navy Relief Funds tomorrow night in Comiskey park.

* * *

Teams from the Great Lakes Naval Training Station and Chanute Field open the show with the finale supplied by the Chicago White Sox and the Cleveland Indians.

CATCHERS' SEASON

NEW YORK—(AP)—A catcher looks like a good bet to win the National League batting championship this season. Babe Phelps of Pittsburgh, Ray Lamanno of Cincinnati, Ernie Lombardi and Clyde Kluttz of Boston, and Mickey Owen of Brooklyn have been among the leaders since the pennant race began.

Hard Luck Ed Smith Keeps Tag

Drops Five-Hit Tilt To Cleveland Indians.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

THERE were only two five-hit ball games pitched in the major leagues yesterday and neither of them was good enough to win.

Who had the misfortune to lose such a well-pitched game? Lefty Edgar Smith of the Chicago White Sox should be the first guess, and that's right.

Everything happens to Cotton-Top and last night it was Lou Boudreau. The boy manager of the Indians personally collected four of the five hits made off Smith and one was Boudreau's first homer of the year.

That explains how Smith acquired his 12th setback of the season opposite two triumphs, although he has pitched consistently spectacular ball all year. The score of the game was 3 to 1.

* * *

The other losing five-hitter was pitched by the Chicago Cubs' big Bill Lee. The Cincinnati Reds beat him 4-1.

The game was played for army-navy relief and, along with an exhibition by Reds-Cubs stars against the Great Lakes naval team, drew $6,000 from approximately 30,000 fans.

Mort Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2, but saw his streak of consecutive scoreless innings snapped at 32 and lost whatever chance he had of getting his fourth straight shutout when Elbie Fletcher homered in the first inning.

Altogether Cooper allowed nine hits, the most he has given in any game this year.

The Boston Braves stopped the Brooklyn Dodgers 4-3 for the first time in 15 games over a period stretching back into the 1941 season. Hugh Casey, the relief specialist, started on the mound for Brooklyn but was removed for a pinchhitter with the score tied at 3-all in the third. Rookie Les Webber gave up the winning run in the fifth.

Cliff Melton achieved his tenth triumph as the New York Giants nosed out the Phils 4-3 on a run which Melton himself singled home in the fourth. The Phils made a double play in every one of the first four innings, but couldn't keep the Giants from getting all their runs in the same span.

* * *

The faltering New York Yankees saw their American league lead shrivel to 4½ games as they divided a doubleheader at Philadelphia while the Boston Red Sox swept a pair of games from the Washington Senators.

The Yanks dropped their first tussle 8-5 for the third straight loss and 10th in 15 games, but rallied for three runs in the ninth to win, the nightcap, 4-3

The Red Sox made 26 hits in thumping the Senators 9-8 and 5-2

CANTON WINS

CANTON—(AP)—Paced by outfielder Cal Barnes, who hit a homer with two aboard in the fifth, Canton defeated Zanesville 7 to 3 last night to take over fourth place in the Mid-Atlantic league from idle Springfield, whose game with Charleston was postponed.

Erie defeated Dayton 6 to 3

YANKS CAN'T EVEN CATCH TRAIN NOW

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— It has come to this: the New York Yankees, who have squandered three-fourths of an 11-game lead recently, are so bad right now they can't even catch a train. Joe Gordon and Ralph (Red) Rolfe, infielders, went to the wrong station in Chicago Sunday and didn't rejoin their mates until just before game time yesterday.

Cincy Raises Service Funds

Nearly 30,000 Turn Out For Navy Game.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Cincinnati is the kind of a town where you can raise money with a baseball game.

The Army-Navy Relief funds, which have been sort of kicked around in special ball games except at Brooklyn and St. Louis, are more than $36,000 fatter as a result of last night's three-ring circus at the ball park.

To entertain a host of 29,541 people, with not a deadhead in the lot, the Great Lakes Naval station team beat a picked team of Cincinnati Reds and Chicago Cubs 3 to 1, the Reds beat the Cubs 4 to 1, and troops from Fort Knox, Ky., staged a military show in the intermission.

The joint Cub-Red efforts called for 25 players, but not one of them could hit Johnny Rigney or Russell Mears of the Sailors worth a darn. A slight outbreak of one run in the ninth was the Major leaguers' best.

The midnightcap was a one-all pitchers' battle between General Bill Lee and Ray Starr until the seventh—when Gee Walker singled, advanced two bases on Starr's bunt, and scored on a fly. In the eighth with two on, Ray Lamanno doubled. his second of the night, to ice the game.

The Reds and Cubs end their brief series tonight with Johnny Vander Meer the home team probable pitcher against Claude Passeau.

* * *

Frankie Baumholtz of the Great Lakes Naval Training station team said good-bye to his team-mates after last night's game with the Reds. The former Ohio University basketball star will be commissioned an ensign Thursday and move to the Pacific coast. Frank was centerfield and lead-off man for Mickey Cochrane's sluggers.

Roaring Grand Opens Program

GOSHEN, N. Y.—(AP)—Trotters and pacers of the Grand Circuit open their war-shortened program today on Goshen's half-mile track.

The Army has taken over the racing strips in Syracuse, N. Y., Indianapolis and Springfield, Ill., and those programs have been cancelled.

The sulky-men will compete over the Goshen track the remaining four days of this week, then vacation until July 8 when a three-day meeting gets under way.

* * *

After that come stops at the Roosevelt raceway on Long Island, Old Orchard, Me.; Saratoga, N. Y.; Goshen again for the Hambletonian program; Milwaukee, Louisville; Reading, Pa; Delaware, Ohio, and Lexington Ky

They'll Miss All-Star Game

There'll be two outstanding diamond stars missing when the United States Service team meets the winner of the American-National league All-Star game in Cleveland, July 7. Hugh Mulcahy, left, above, former pitching star of the Philadelphia Phils, and Hank Greenberg, former Detroit Tiger slugger, are in training at the Army Air Forces officer training school in Miami Beach, Fla., and will be unable to play in the game. They expect to graduate as second lieutenants in a few weeks. The two stars are pictured at the school.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—There won't be any fireworks hereabouts July 4, but there should be plenty at the major league meeting two days later when the boys start bringing up such propositions as the traveling world series and Jack Zeller's no-spring-training idea. . . . From here, Zeller's suggestion of starting late and training at home sounds good, but to make the 1943 season (if any) a success, we favor playing week-ends only until the usual closing time. . . . Teams could play night or twilight games Fridays, double-headers Saturdays and Sundays and do pretty well. The players might even take up Art Rooney's idea for the pro footballers and get useful jobs the other five days. . . . Traveling could be cut down to a war-time level by separating the eastern and western sections.

A HONEY OF A HUNCH.

James E. Doyle of the Cleveland Plain Dealer reports that a dazzling blond rushed into the Thistle Down hoss track the other day brandishing a shotgun and shrieking, "Take it away from me or I'll kill him." . . . A guard obligingly relieved her of the gun while the veteran horse players merely shrugged, looked at their programs and hurried off to get down bets on Military Girl. . . . The hoss won from here to there.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Bill Diehl, Norfolk (Va.) Ledger-Dispatch: "Sammy Snead, who, it will be remembered, blew two big tournaments with last-hole eights, has resumed using the past tense of the verb 'eat' since he won that P. G. A. championship."

YALE HURLER WAS STINGY WITH RUNS

NEW HAVEN—(AP)—Ted Harrison, Yale pitcher, wound up his collegiate career with one of the best earned-run averages in Eastern Intercollegiate League history. Leading the circuit for the third straight year Harrison this season allowed only nine earned runs in 62 innings for a mark of 1.31.

Kingfish Guns For Hitler

'Me and Joe'll Stop Dat Bum,' Says King.

CHICAGO — (INS) — With much more enthusiasm than he looked forward to his now historic bout with Joe Louis in 1935, King Levinsky today welcomed the news that he is to report to his draft board Monday for physical examination.

The Kingfish—his formal name is Harry King Krakow—said he is all ready to go even if he is married and "wid de swellest little family any guy ever had." He is sure if he is accepted by the army Adolf Hitler faces some tough days. He said:

* * *

"Why, me and Joe Louis, we can whip dem Heinies any day we want to. You better let Hitler know dat de Kingfish is coming."

* * *

Levinsky didn't mention it, but he probably recalled that evening in 1935 when he and Louis participated in one of the most bizarre major prize fights in Chicago history. Louis sat Levinsky on the seat of his trunks four times within the first 141 seconds and won the fight when the referee stopped it as Levinsky sat dazed and helpless on one of the ropes, his arms at his sides.

The Kingfish will be missed along Randolph and Clark streets where the "sports" congregate. He has been a daily fixture in the neighborhood. Lately, he said, he has been selling neckties—"swell ties, too, wid my own name in 'em."

He was confident he could pass the army's physical examination, except that he might be "too fat." His draft board, however, assured him the army has efficient means of reducing excess poundage.

Boy Boss Boudreau Blasts Four Bingles to Beat Sox

CLEVELAND—(AP)—As the Indians went after their third successive victory over the White Sox today, Cleveland Manager Lou Boudreau was regarded as an entirely different hitter from the player he was two days ago.

Boudreau suddenly recovered from a batting slump, and last night personally accounted for the trio of tallies which beat the Chisox 3 to 1 and gave Pitcher Jim Bagby his ninth victory against four defeats.

Manager Lou collected his first home run of the season, a double and two singles to get four of the Tribe's five hits and add another tough chapter to the story of Hard-Luck Ed Smith.

Lou had gone hitless eight times in the Boston-Cleveland series before he jerked himself for Pinch-Hitter Chubby Dean on Sunday. Adding insult to injury, the Red Sox had passed Rookie Les Fleming intentionally four times to get at Boudreau, and twice the shortstop hit into double plays to check Indian rallies. The fifth time Lou sent in Dean, who drove in the winning run.

In Monday's game here Boudreau went hitless in four official trips to the plate.

But under last night's lights he picked the first strike of the evening and punched it into the left field stands.

With two out in the third, Lou slapped his double to left center, hugged second while Oris Hockett waited out a walk, and then dashed all the way home on a wild pitch.

The boss led off the sixth with a single, was sacrificed to second, and scored the Indians' final marker on Ken Keltner's drive to center, the only safety not credited to Boudreau.

* * *

For Smith, who previously lost to the Redskins 1 to 0 and 2 to 1, it was the 12th defeat in 14 games.

ATTENDANCE MARKS AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

COLUMBUS —(INS)—Attendance figures at American association baseball games are 5.1 per cent ahead of last year's figures it was announced today by league President George M. Trautman. Milwaukee, with an increase of 169 6 per cent, leads the clubs' increase.

Three other teams have shown increased figures this year. Indianapolis, 82 3 per cent ahead. Toledo, 28.4 per cent ahead and Columbus, 19.3 per cent above last year's mark.

Blues Favored For Star Tilt

Locale of Association Game, Not Determined.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The ninth annual American association all-star baseball game will be staged "somewhere" the night of July 23.

The contest will be played at the home park of the club holding first place after the July 12 contests.

* * *

With but one exception, all proceeds from the game will be donated to Army and Navy Relief. The exception, requested by Army-Navy Relief officials, is that expenses in connection with opening the park be paid from the receipts.

Final plans for the contest will be made after the site is determined, but the baseball writers, co-sponsor of the game with the league, are now voting on the all-star squad's personnel.

It looked today, however, like the Kansas City Blues might be the host tea . July 23. They split a doubleheader with Indianapolis last night, winning the opener 2 to 0 and dropping the nightcap 5 to 1, and hold a three and a half game edge on second place Milwaukee.

Milwaukee lost to Louisville 3 to 1 last night. Toledo defeated St. Paul 2 to 1 in 10 innings in the only other contest of the evening. The Columbus-Minneapolis tilt was postponed because of inclement weather.

JOHNNY MIZE WON'T FORGET THIS SOON

NEW YORK — (AP) — It'll be some time before Johnny Mize, Giant's first sacker, is embarrassed as much as he was in a recent series with Cincinnati. Johnny tried to work the antiquated hidden ball trick on Eddie Joost, Reds' infielder. Eddie adroitly reached around Mize, snatched the ball from his glove and with a gin tossed the ball out to the pitcher.

Russo Enters Ashland Race

Star of Indianapolis Oval Competes July 4.

ASHLAND—At least one Indianapolis speedway star was assured for the Independence day auto racing program here on the half-mile Ashland county fairground oval with the entry today of Ohio's flat track king, Paul Russo of Kenosha, Wisconsin.

Russo, a former eastern AAA champion who snared ninth place in the 1941 Indianapolis Memorial day 500-mile big car grind, entered his record smashing maroon No. 23 Offenhauser.

Also entering today was Milt Franhouser of Steubenville with the Cleveland-owned Jackson Special, a hot-running V-8 60 that has campaigned for the past two years with the best class A cars in this section of the country. A third entry received today was that of Elmo Green of Phoenix, Arizona, defending point champion of the Ohio midget racing circuit with his No. 17 Offenhauser.

Previous entries were Johnny Wohlfeil of Detroit, Bob Heinze of Brunswick, Clarence La Rue of Akron, Mike Little, Johnstown, Pa., and Wally Stokes of Honolulu, H. T.

Time trials Saturday afternoon start at 12:30. The first of the seven races will get under way promptly at 2:45 p. m. Popular prices will prevail.

Tribe Chief Expects Yanks To Snap Out of Stick Slump

By TOMMY DEVINE
(UP Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO — Lou Boudreau, youthful manager of the Cleveland Indians, cautioned his American league colleagues today about fashioning pennant dreams on the basis of the New York Yankees' current slump.

* * *

"The Yanks had an extremely poor western trip," Boudreau said, "but I think that merely was a slump like every ball club runs into. They should snap out of it soon."

Could the world champions roll on to another pennant even if Joe DiMaggio and Charley Keller, the club's two "big" hitters, remain below the .300 mark?

"That's tough to say," the 25-year-old Tribe pilot said. "When you think of the Yanks you think of power—the kind that is represented by long hits and big innings. With DiMaggio and Keller down the club isn't following that pattern. Odd as it may seem the Yanks are on top because they've had the best pitching in the league. The hurling bogged a bit of late and trouble followed."

And if the Yanks continued to skid?

"Then Boston becomes the logical pennant choice," Boudreau said. "On what the Red Sox showed me in our last series they are a club that's good enough to be conceded a chance. Pitching has been an old failing of Joe Cronin's outfit, but the Red Sox have had high class mound work recently and they aren't too far off the pace. Remember they're home for their next 16 games and a good showing during that stand would mean a lot to them.

"There's no question Boston is stronger than it was a year ago. In addition to improved pitching the Red Sox benefit by the all-around improvement of Dom DiMaggio in the outfield and the fine work of Johnny Pesky at shortstop. Pesky's a splendid young player."

Boudreau, who modestly set a first division birth as his goal—when he took over the Cleveland managerial reins, hasn't changed his mind.

"I'll regard the season as a success if we finish in the first division," he said, "but if we could get a few breaks along the line we might land in third place or even second. I feel we'd have been closer to the pace if Gene Desautels hadn't broken his ankle. That hurt us plenty for he's a fine handler of pitchers and knew the hitters. Gene is going to make our next eastern trip but won't be ready to play right away."

Softball Kids Clout Homers

Each of Three Games Has Circuit Clout.

Y. M. C. A. Pros barely edged Maple Lake in the boys' softball league yesterday 12-11 in a game that started out as a slugging match and wound up as a hurling duel in the lasts two stanzas. Schnugg hit a home run for Maple.

HENRY ARMSTRONG FAVORED IN BOUT

DENVER — (INS)—Henry Armstrong today was favored at two to one to decision Reuben Shank Friday night in City auditorium, but last-minute local money behind the Denver welterweight was expected to shorten those odds considerably.

Armstrong, former featherweight, lightweight and welterweight champion attempting a comeback, displayed stamina and some of his old speed in a six-round workout yesterday. The 20-year-old Shank, who split two decisions in Minneapolis recently with Fritzie Zivic, will make his first appearance in Denver since turning professional.

WRESTLED HIS WAY TO DOCTOR'S DEGREE

MILWAUKEE —(AP)— Friends of John Bonica now know his full story. It was not until Bonica, who was born in Italy, had completed his four-year medical course at Marquette, begun his interneship and had been married, did they discover he had earned his way through school as a professional wrestler.

Using the name Bull Walker he won the light heavyweight championship of Canada and wrestled extensively in the east before enrolling at Marquette where he became an honor student.

TROUT HOOKS GIRL IN SUN VALLEY

SUN VALLEY, Ida. — (AP) — Here's Sun Valley's first fish story of the season, and it's a good one. It's a story about a trout who hooked a girl.

Dolores Hegstrom, fishing at Magic Dam, pulled in a trout and discovered that her hook had never touched the fish. It had been hooked by a previous angler, and swallowed one hook, and still had another hook and piece of leader dangling from its mouth. The free hook caught on to the girl's hook, and that's how the "catch" was made.

TIGER CUB TERROR

BEAUMONT, Tex.—(AP)— Dick Wakefield, the Detroit Tigers' $52,000 outfield prospect with Beaumont collected three homers, two doubles, 16 total bases and batted in six runs in a recent night game.

LISTEN, YOU—WE'RE NOT FOOLING! WE WANT THAT FORMULA, AND WE WANT IT QUICK!
BACK TO THE HOSPITAL
AND YOU DIDN'T GET THE GIRL'S NAME?
7-1
NO, I DIDN'T MR. GORDON, BUT SHE SAID SHE WAS A FRIEND OF THAT OLD GENTLEMAN I TOLD YOU ABOUT
DO YOU KNOW WHO HE IS?
OH, YES ---
HER NEXT WORDS SENT DAVID BACK ON HIS HEELS!
HIS NAME IS CAREY -COLONEL CLIFFORD CAREY. I THINK SHE'S HIS SECRETARY!
WHAT!?

YEP--I GOTTA GET TH' LOWDOWN ON OLD MRS. SLEET BEFORE I TACKLE HER--ER--AHEM--HELLO!
EH? OH· HELLO, YERSELF-
GEE! THAT'S SURE A SWELL-LOOKIN' GARDEN, MISTER- GUESS YOU KNOW HOW TO GROW THINGS
HUMPH! NOT WHAT OLD MRS. SLEET THINKS- BUT IT'S NICE O' YOU TO SAY SO·· AIN'T YOUR NAME ANNIE?
YES-- I'M ANNIE- BUT HOW DID YOU KNOW?
HEH! HEH! OH, I GIT AROUND- HEARD A LOT O' NICE THINGS ABOUT YOU--MY NAME'S JED-- I'M HER GARDENER-
HONEST, NOW--SHE'S REALLY NOT HALF AS BAD AS THEY SAY IS SHE?
OH, I DUNNO- SHE'S PLENTY HARD BUT SHE'S SQUARE- I'LL GIVE 'ER HER DUE THERE-- CAN'T RIGHTLY BLAME HER, I RECKON-
LOST HER HUSBAND AND HER ONLY SON, BOTH IN THE LAST WAR--IT CHANGED HER--SHE WAS RIGHT NICE AFORE THAT--HMM--CHANGE ANYBODY, I RECKON- IT WAS A FEARFUL BLOW-

STOCK MARKET PRICES MOVE SHADE LOWER

Westinghouse Among Group Showing Minus Marks on Day's Trade.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Prices were a shade lower for the majority of leaders in today's stock market dealings.

Showing minus marks were American Telephone, Westinghouse, N. Y. Central, General Electric, Consolidated Edison and Johns-Manville.

Emphasizing the shrinkage of building activities in the non-essential field, the Engineering News-Record reported that all but a minor part of engineered construction volume for the past week represented federal work.

The total was $4,905,294,000 compared with $2,841,403,000 in the like period last year. Private construction came to only $341,408,000 and state and municipal $328,966,000.

TWO CANNONS GO TO SCRAP

Shelby School Donates Its Trophies From World War Number One.

SHELBY—Shelby is going "all-out" for the national scrap collection campaign, figures released today by the local drive officials showed.

Approximately 15,000 pounds more of scrap metal was taken to the junk yards from the collection depot at the intersection of Mohican and East Main streets, while 25,000 pounds of rubber have been collected.

Two old cannons placed in Central school park downtown since World War I ended, have been removed and added to the collection pile. The cannons were brought here from the army in 1919.

The Shelby police department has added two rubber hall runners to the scrap rubber collection. The runners had been placed in the police station building.

Filling stations reported that a number of persons have sold the rubber mats in the back floors and trunks of their automobiles. The mats add to the growing rubber collection for the war effort.

Martin and Smith confessed beating and robbing Thomas McWilliams, Mansfield, of $192 in an alley off North Main street in May. Attorney George Blecker, representing them, asked that they be placed on probation since neither had a previous court record.

Others who pleaded innocent to indictments against them were Miss Corrine Stewart, colored, accused of cutting with intent to wound; Ruben Payne, charged with cutting with intent to wound, and Clay Chaney, indicted for grand larceny in the alleged theft of men's suits from Mansfield stores.

CONGRESS FAILS TO VOTE FUNDS

Agriculture Department Goes To Work Today But It's Technically 'Broke.'

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON— An unprecedented congressional stalemate brought to a technical halt today the far-flung activities of the agriculture department but the thousands of workers planned nevertheless to return to their desks in anticipation of a belated settlement.

Failure of senate and house to agree on appropriations for the fiscal year starting last midnight left the department without operating funds and officials decided to make no new commitments.

Congressional leaders hoped to be able to agree today on a resolution which would authorize Secretary Wickard to continue activities on a makeshift basis until senate-house conferees could agree on provisions of his $680,000,000 supply bill.

The conferees reached a 4-4 deadlock several weeks ago over an administration request for authority to dispose of wheat at below-parity prices.

It was reported, meanwhile, that the agriculture department and the office of price administration were considering using unexpended commodity credit corporation funds as a stopgap to prevent a tight situation which might cause vegetables and dried fruits to break through price ceilings fixed by OPA Administrator Leon Henderson.

Henderson reportedly suggested general legislation be enacted to provide for subsidies either to agriculture or businesses which were "squeezed" between rising wholesale and frozen retail prices.

But in view of the temper of congress, informed sources said that such legislation would have little chance.

SURVIVE AGAIN

Two Women Escape In Second Ship Torpedoing.

AN EAST COAST PORT—(INS)—Thirty-one survivors from a torpedoed Panamanian merchant ship, including two women who had survived the sinking of another vessel in the Mediterranean earlier in the war, have been landed safely at an east coast port, the navy disclosed today.

Only one German aboard the Panamanian ship was missing after the craft was torpedoed and sunk by an enemy U-boat off the Atlantic coast. The two women survivors were stewardesses.

Eats Carrots Till Navy Ok's Him

William J. (Billy) McBride, 17, (above), son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McBride, 332 Austin avenue, really wanted to get into the navy—and get in he did. He tried immediately after Pearl Harbor, but was too young. Then, when he became 17 on Jan. 29, examination showed his eyes weren't up to standard. Recruiting Officer W. G. Cox suggested he eat carrots, because of their Vitamin A content. From then on he ate carrots morning, noon and night — either raw or cooked, and with plenty of carrot juice on the side. Last week he passed the navy examination, which was more lenient on eye requirements, but examination showed his vision had improved considerably, Cox reported. Billy was one of the 24 who left the city today to enter navy service. In the photo above, he is demonstrating his carrot-eating technique.
